

F. D. R., AIDES DISCUSS BRITISH AID BILL AT EXTRAORDINARY NIGHT CONFERENCE

Talmadge Pleads for Passage of Budget Control Bill; Denies Malice in Wanting Power To Suspend Officials

Tax Increase To Get Sanction If Necessary

Governor Apparently Convinces Lawmakers in Eloquent Speech.

By LUKE GREENE.

Governor Talmadge went to members of the general assembly yesterday with his financial troubles.

He pleaded with them to enact his budget control bill; urged them to approve an amended bill giving him the power to suspend the comptroller general and state treasurer for cause and apparently had them convinced by the time he reached the last line of his eloquently presented speech that seemed to have cast a spell over legislators gathered in joint session in the house of representatives.

The chief executive unloaded a wealth of figures upon them at the outset, showing how many state departments were in debt and then warmed up to the statement that he would approve a tax increase if necessary to pay the valid debts of the state in the event the legislators should not see fit to pass the budget control bill.

Suggests Change.

He further attempted to remove any doubt from their minds by declaring that the purpose of the suspension bill was not to fire State Treasurer George B. Hamilton and suggesting an amendment to the bill requiring the Governor to call the general assembly in session within 30 days after a suspension either to ratify his action or to reinstate the ejected official.

The Governor received a big hand when he finished his speech. The senators and representatives exchanged views over the address and most of them agreed it was a clear explanation of the Governor's position and probably would have a constructive effect on the general assembly.

Not once did the Governor refer to the general assembly or any of its members in a critical light. He went so far as to praise some of the senators who led the fight against his suspension bill which the senate yesterday voted to reconsider after defeating it last Friday by a vote of 22-to-17.

Problems Tremendous.
The Governor told legislators that "the financial problems of the state are tremendous and added that if the state government were a private business it already would be bankrupt."

"In order to put the finances on a sound basis I have inaugurated the budget control plan," he continued on Page 2, Column 2.

JEANETTE STROLLS ALONG MITCHELL—Jeanette MacDonald would be quite at home on Hollywood boulevard, or Broadway, or Biscayne boulevard—and she was at home on Mitchell street. The singer came into Atlanta yesterday almost through the back door because none knew of her plans. H. J. Slayton, Constitution photographer, was called by a messenger boy at the Terminal station and went to see the actress but she had stepped out to get some Georgia sunshine and fresh air. Miss MacDonald was en route to Florida.

Half of Nation Held in Grip Of Snowstorm

Hundreds Work to Clear Highways; Temperature Drop Predicted.

By The Associated Press.

Snow blanketed the northern half of the nation last night and cold swept in to incrust it. Snow fell over the weekend from Nebraska to New England and edged into Virginia. The cold dipped into Arkansas, Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle, and was expected to extend into Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

Falling temperatures in much of the Great Lakes region and along the Atlantic seaboard followed in the wake of the storm.

Readings of 15 above zero were forecast for Illinois and Indiana. Ohio's temperatures generally were in the 20s and were expected to drop.

Florida reported lows of 54 at Jacksonville, 58 at Tampa and 60 at Miami. In California such readings as 50 at Los Angeles and San Diego and 45 at Fresno were recorded.

The coldest spots in the nation were Caribou, Maine, with 20 below zero, and Minot, N. D., with 16 below.

The snowfall, ranging from 13 inches in Des Moines, Iowa, to three to five inches in New York and New England, assured winter sports enthusiasts of continued sport.

Airline operations at New York's LaGuardia field were virtually at a standstill. Baltimore and Atlanta reported cancellation of flights because of poor visibility. Most through highways were cleared quickly. Maryland marshalled 800 men and 200 snowplows.

Fulton, DeKalb Boards Ready For Third Call

184 White Men, 59 Negroes To Be Drafted in March for Training.

Draft boards in Fulton and DeKalb counties will select 184 white registrants and 59 Negroes next month for one year of military training.

This, the third call in this section, will bring the number of trainees from the metropolitan area to 678, including volunteers. This figure is almost one-third of the year's quota.

Many of the local boards, especially in Fulton county, have exhausted their reserves of white volunteers but still have large numbers of Negro registrants anxious to serve.

The white registrants will report to Fort McPherson between February 17 and February 21. The Negroes will be inducted at Fort Benning between February 20 and February 25.

The quotas are part of a statewide call for 972 white men and 360 Negroes to be drafted between February 17 and March 11.

The list of the boards follows, showing the number of registrants in the February call and the number of men already inducted.

Big Troopship Torpedoed Off Coast of Africa

'Empress of Australia' Is Down at Bow, Asks Help by Radio.

By The Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 27.—The Empress of Australia, reported in service recently as a troop transport, radioed tonight she had been torpedoed and shelled off the West African coast, then suddenly became silent.

Tropical Radio said the 21,833-ton vessel, which brought the King and Queen of England to this continent two years ago, called for assistance at 9:38 p. m. (Atlanta time) saying she had been attacked 200 miles off Dakar, French West Africa.

The ship's operator, Tropical reported, said the vessel was "down by the bow" and had put lifeboats over the port side. Tropical intercepted a 9:53 p. m. message relating the ship was "being shelled again."

Tropical said the 300-foot ship tried to send another message at 9:55 p. m., but the signals were unintelligible and cut off abruptly.

Position of the ship was given as latitude 45 degree 30 minutes north, longitude 18 degrees 20 minutes west.

The Empress of Australia, 590 feet long, was built in 1914 and was owned by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

Last October 3, she stopped to rescue the entire crew of torpedoed Dutch liner Volendam in mid-Atlantic. The Empress of Australia had left Liverpool on that voyage with the refugee ship City of Benares, but had turned back for repairs to her mine belt.

Another Canadian-Pacific liner, the 42,348-ton Empress of Britain, which took the royal couple back to England, was torpedoed and sunk in October with a loss of 45 men while the British were attempting to tow her back to port while she had been badly damaged by Nazi bombers.

Willkie Hits It Off With British Chiefs

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Private Citizen Wendell L. Willkie conferred at length today with the top men of Britain's war cabinet—Prime Minister Churchill, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Labor Minister Ernest Bevin.

During the day Willkie announced his intention to go to neutral Eire (Ireland) to see Prime Minister Eamon de Valera. Willkie called first on Eden, then went to No. 10 Downing street to see Churchill and present a message from President Roosevelt.

His original luncheon engagement called for only an hour's stay, but he and Churchill became so engrossed in their conversation that it lasted twice that long.

"He was very gracious," Willkie said upon leaving the prime minister. "I knew he was a great man. I know it now even more."

From Churchill's official residence he went to call on Bevin and they, too, hit it off from the start. Bevin was due for a cabinet meeting at 6 p. m., but when the hour approached they still were talking and it took the urging of a secretary finally to get the labor minister off to his meeting.

Halifax Denies Existence Of British Secret Pacts

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—(P)—"our first war aim is to win the war and our main peace aim is, with others, to reconstruct the world so as not to have another one."

Asserting that Britons would not be fighting as they are "unless they thought they were fighting for democracy," Lord Halifax discussed a personal meeting he had with Hitler in 1937.

Hitler, he said, told him it was useless to try to improve Anglo-German relations as long as the British parliament and press were free to criticize Germany.

"If that is your idea of what must be done," Halifax said he told Hitler, "I think I've wasted my time and yours."

Halifax received more than 100 reporters at the embassy. Briefly, however, he declared

Halifax, the former British foreign minister, indicated he may soon define British war aims in detail for the first time.

Briefly, however, he declared

Clarence Thompson, former city water meter inspector, was convicted by a jury yesterday in Fulton superior court on three counts of defrauding the city of Atlanta out of water worth more than $2,200 over a period of years.

The charges are misdemeanors for which the maximum punishment is one year on public works, six months in jail and $1,000 fine on each count. Judge E. E. Pomeroy is to impose sentence on Thompson this morning.

After listening to three days of testimony and argument, the jury took only 40 minutes yesterday afternoon to find the former meter inspector guilty as charged.

Thompson himself was the only witness for the defense, making an unsworn statement to the jury in which he denied any wrongdoing. Briefly, he said he was not guilty and had not defrauded the city of anything.

Concluding his case started Thursday, the state yesterday put up three witnesses, Mrs. Ben Kaplan, R. B. Parker and Mrs. Nora Hightower.

The defendant was convicted of defrauding the city of water valued at $1,023.56 in collaboration with Ben I. Tessler, operator of the Independent Laundry at 902 West Peachtree; of $1,292.88 worth of water with Sidney Goldstein, operator of the Primrose or Parker's Sno-White Laundry at 572 Edgewood avenue, and of more than $100 worth of water with H. L. Scott, filling station operator.

The anti-aircraft defenses provided for in the $300,000,000 naval authorization consist of guns and armor. They are to be installed on 58 combat ships and 103 auxiliaries which are now in service.

Rear Admiral S. M. Robinson, chief of the Bureau of Ships, told the committee that the additional defenses were dictated by lessons of the European war, and that once they are installed "you can be sure that our ships will be a little better than the other fel' w's if we get into any sort of mixup."

He said, in reply to questions, that British naval experience in the Mediterranean made it "perfectly obvious" that "a naval arm is practically useless without a co-ordinate air arm."

The committee also approved a $909,000,000 authorization to build 400 small naval craft and expand shipyard facilities, but Chairman Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, did not ask the senate to shove this bill through like the others. He probably will call for a vote on Wednesday when the senate meets again.

President Roosevelt asked congress today to authorize the Maritime Commission to contract immediately for $65,000,000 of additional expenditures in order to complete its regular 200-ship construction program by July 1.

This would supplement a previous authorization of $495,000,000 for the regular program, which is separate from the emergency 200-ship program. Contracts have been let for 180 of these vessels at an estimated cost of $446,000,000 as of January 20.

Mr. Roosevelt reported, and 92 have been launched.

George Predicts Passage in Radio Address Explaining Measure.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—President Roosevelt and congressional leaders of both parties discussed amendments to the lend-lease bill at an extraordinary conference tonight, but Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, said they came to no agreement or understanding on the subject.

Barkley, the senate majority leader, said no effort was made to reach "even a tentative" agreement and that the purpose of the conference was a better understanding of the measure by all.

Among the amendments which were brought up was the proposal that a time limit be fixed for the duration of the wide powers which the bill would confer upon the President.

Barkley said there was also a "casual" discussion of suggestions that a top limit be placed on money to be spent. However, he added, the general feeling was that this was better left for the future decision of congress, which would have to pass on appropriations to implement the program.

Would Ban Convoys.

Other amendments, he said, included one forbidding the use of naval vessels as convoys for ships carrying materials to England.

"It was a very friendly conference," Barkley said, adding that there was, however, some "intense discussion."

"The purpose of the meeting," he remarked, "was part of the process of understanding the bill, and discussing it intimately and freely with a view to having the bill more thoroughly understood in congress and in the country, too."

Advisory Board Plan.

It was reported authoritatively that another amendment discussed would prevent the export of any defense articles already purchased by the Army and Navy unless the Army chief of staff and the chief of naval operations certified that the export would "not in any way" diminish American defenses.

Although Barkley did not mention other proposed amendments, other informed legislators said in advance of the conference that the agenda included a proposal for a board of legislators and former legislators to advise the President in administering the lease-lend bill.

Cotton Council Seeks Way To Boost Exports

Oscar Johnston Outlines Four-Point Remedial Program.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 27.—(UP)—Oscar Johnston, of Scott, Miss., president of the National Cotton Council of America, today outlined plans for increasing cotton exports, "once a degree of normalcy is restored abroad."

Johnston listed as factors in the program for regaining this nation's foreign cotton markets:

Continuance of the State Department's reciprocal trade agreements.

Increase of capital funds of the Export-Import Bank.

Adjustment of shipments of barter cotton to give seasonal preference to commercial shipments from the current crop.

Changes in sale regulations of Maritime Commission, so Great Britain could buy old vessels, which provided additional ships for carrying U. S. cotton abroad.

The council also reported progress—especially in Mississippi—in effecting repeal of laws penalizing sale of cottonseed products.

TALMADGE SPEAKING—Addressing a joint session of the general assembly yesterday morning, Governor Eugene Talmadge went into details of the state's financial plight, threatened new taxes if the appropriations bill he desires isn't passed, and suggested amendments to other measures the administration desires and which have run into unexpected difficulties. Behind him, left to right, are Senate President Charles Redwine; Mrs. Talmadge and Speaker of the House Randall Evans Jr.

Talmadge Asks Assembly To Pass His Bills

continued. "It is not my intention to curtail essential services, but to reduce the overhead costs to the necessary minimum."

Governor Talmadge said a law remained on the statute books for 54 years giving the chief executive the right to suspend the comptroller general and state treasurer, explained he used this law to oust the treasurer in 1935, but that it was repealed at the next meeting of the general assembly.

Wants Act Restored.
Lowering his voice to almost a whisper, the Governor said "with malice toward none" he would like to have that law restored, emphasizing that under the budget control law it became even more necessary that the treasurer follow the requisitions from the Governor.

He said this would be his attitude regardless of who is treasurer and then shouted, "I don't want to fire anybody."

The Governor also called for the co-operation of the general assembly in cutting the salaries of four constitutional, elective officials, bills for which already have been introduced in both houses.

He said he was shocked to see that a measure providing for the four-year term for Governor still listed the salary of the Governor at $7,500.

Wants Salary Cut.
"I asked you to make my salary $5,000 a year, and I ask you again now," he said. "My recommendation is that I don't think any official of Georgia should receive a salary of more than $5,000 a year."

He suggested one amendment in the highway reorganization bill which already has passed the senate. He pointed out it only provided for per diem pay of $10 and traveling expenses for the two part-time members. This should be changed, he said, so as to give these members subsistence while they are in the service of the state.

The chief executive predicted that when the present war in Europe is over the United States will be facing one of the greatest economic wars in its history and said this was one of his reasons for wanting to cut down on jobs and salaries.

Still Loves Hamilton, Talmadge Tells Solons

During his appearance before the joint session yesterday, Governor Talmadge told the legislators he held no political animosity toward State Treasurer George B. Hamilton.

"I appointed the state treasurer to his office. I loved him then and I love him now," he said.

The Governor at the time was discussing the proposed bill which would permit him to suspend the treasurer and comptroller general.

Bill To Change Fulton Budget Plan Offered

County Purchasing Agency Also Proposed Before Lower House.

A bill to permit Fulton county to base its budgets on its 1939 income of approximately five million dollars was introduced in the lower house of the general assembly yesterday by Representatives Mankin, Etheridge and Kendrick.

The Fulton delegation also sponsored measures that would establish a county purchasing agency and permit a member of the county commission other than the chairman to sit on the County Health Board and Planning and Zoning Commission.

The bill amending the county's compulsory budget law would set the 1939 income as the limit of future budgets until a year comes when collections are greater, when the larger figure would be set up as the budgetary limit.

Present Budget Law.
Effective January 1, 1940, the county's original budget law made the budgetary limit a figure one per cent less than the 1939 collections, and provided further cuts of one per cent each year until 1945 when the sum the county could spend would become fixed.

Passage of the act is expected to make an additional $400,000 a year available to county departments. In case county income falls below the 1939 level, the amendment permits officials to scale the budget down accordingly.

A supplementary budget bill would provide public hearings while budgets were being made up, would provide for advertising the budget in an Atlanta daily newspaper and would forbid change of the budget by additional appropriations unless county revenue exceeds the anticipated amount. In case of damage to county buildings by fire, wind, storm or other casualties, fiscal authorities may appropriate the insurance or other available revenue for repairs.

Purchasing Agency.
The act to authorize the establishment of a purchasing agency provides for a department head and a number of assistants, all of whom shall be appointed by the commissioners. The department head's term of office shall be one year.

His duties will be to secure the prices of all supplies and goods to be bought by the county with the exception of the Departments of Education and Welfare; to inspect all goods to be bought; to comply with all laws regulating bid advertising and buy only those offered at the lowest price; to submit an itemized account of the activities of his office on the 10th of each month and to keep a complete inventory of all county property.

35 Patrolmen Guard 2 Negroes

GEORGETOWN, S. C., Jan. 27. (P)—A detail of 35 state highway patrolmen was on duty here tonight as general sessions court officials made ready to call the cases of George Thomas and Isaac Gibson, Negroes, charged with criminal assault upon white women.

Battery D, 178th Field Artillery, South Carolina National Guard, took its station at the Georgetown army in compliance with an order placing it under federal service effective today. The battery will remain here for several days, but will not be called upon to maintain order here unless the situation warrants it, it was said.

The old seaport was quiet tonight in marked contrast to the days last month when streets were cleared of Negroes here as a precautionary measure. The trouble had started when a young married woman reported she was attacked.

18,000 Names Will Be Added To Pension List

Welfare Department's Expenses Are Cut to $83,000.

More than 18,000 Georgians will be added to the pension rolls of the State Department of Public Welfare under a budget approved yesterday by Governor Talmadge and calling for the expenditure of $1,285,267.66 for the first three months of this year as compared with $1,560,000 for the last quarter.

To make it possible for this number to be placed on the public assistance rolls, administrative expenses of the department were slashed from $102,627.58 to $83,000.

At present there are 52,027 persons on the rolls. This number will be increased to 70,313.

State funds alone for payment of the benefits will amount to $824,000 as compared with $514,164.67 for the previous quarter. The rest of the funds for the benefits come from the federal government.

During his campaign the Governor was particularly critical of the high administrative costs of the welfare department and promised to place more old people on the pension lists.

The Governor approved a number of other budgets yesterday, the majority calling for reductions of approximately 20 per cent.

The surplus commodity division of the welfare department was cut from $10,300 to $10,000. The Training School for Girls in Atlanta took a reduction from $10,374.01 to $9,500, the Training School for Boys at Milledgeville, $40,214.47 to $22,373; the state hospital at Milledgeville from $405,451.48 to $345,600; the Department of Law from $10,536.18 to $10,117.64; the institution building program from $180,121.84 to $32,000 and providing for the completion of this program; the board of penal corrections from $135,389.88 to $76,705; the military department from $15,620.50 to $11,850; the prison and parole commission from $14,232 to $12,000 and the secretary of state's office from $6,389.12 to $5,915; security division of the secretary of state from $3,609.70 to $2,730, and the examining board division from $19,282.13 to $18,172.50.

No state money was required for the State Department of Public Health during the next three months, since it had a sufficient cash balance on hand. The same amount of money, $57,946.20, was approved for the sanatorium at Alto, but the Governor specified that new buildings should be put into use. He also ordered that the use of new buildings at the state hospital in Milledgeville begin at once.

Budgets for the Department of Labor, factory inspection division; the Academy for the Blind, the Confederate Soldiers' home, the school for mental defectives and the school for the deaf were sent back for further study.

Sites To Base Blimp Studied On West Coast

48 Nonrigid Dirigibles Authorized for Navy by Congress.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 27.—(P)—Captain Charles E. Rosendahl, senior member of a three-man special naval commission studying sites for non-rigid airships, said today construction of a $5,000,000 base for lighter-than-air craft would probably get under way in the San Francisco bay area within several weeks.

The commission, appointed by Secretary of the Navy Knox, arrived in San Francisco today to survey 26 proposed sites within 50 miles of San Francisco.

Captain Rosendahl said the commission forwarded recommendations for two other bases to Washington. One is in the Boston area and the other in the Norfolk-Hatteras area on the east coast.

These three are all contemplated under this year's naval program. A bill is now being prepared for the appropriation of necessary funds for the bases and for 48 non-rigid dirigibles authorized, but not appropriated for, in the previous congress.

Building in Statesboro Hit by $50,000 Fire

STATESBORO, Ga., Jan. 27.—(P)—Fire in the Holland building here yesterday caused damage estimated at more than $50,000. The building housed a shoe store, grocery store, a dental office and other offices.

It was the seventh fire here in as many days.

Highway Board Debt Pay Plan Before House

Lovett Claims Measure Would Free Fund of Several Millions.

By JACK SPALDING.

A bill to permit the Highway Department to issue written acknowledgments of its debts that its embarrassed creditors would be able to assign to other parties was introduced in the house of representatives yesterday by W. H. Lovett, of Laurens county.

Lovett's measure would permit the Governor, state auditor and chairman of the Highway Board to audit and approve the board's obligations. The board would then be able to make written acknowledgment of the validity of the certified claims which would be assignable in writing to banks or other agencies or persons "free of equities, counter-claims, set-offs and recoupments against the department."

Gypsy Rose Lee Wants To Doff Her Husband

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—(P)—Mrs. Arnold R. Mizzy, better known as Gypsy Rose Lee, filed suit for divorce today in superior court.

The strip-teaser alleged her husband, a New York dental supply manufacturer, treated her cruelly on November 6, 1938, and again on November 8, when he used "obscene and abusive language."

Mrs. Mizzy is now appearing at a north side theater cafe.

Her suit set forth that she and Mizzy were married in a water taxi off Santa Ana, Cal., August 13, 1937, and a second time at Long Beach, Cal., August 27. She wants the decree to take care of both ceremonies.

ARMY in Georgia

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—(P)—A War Department plan to enlarge Fort Benning, Ga., extending the reservation's western boundary into Alabama, was disclosed today by Senator Hill, Democrat, Alabama.

He said the army, with budget bureau approval, would ask an appropriation soon to purchase 54,200 additional acres for the Benning post. Of that, he said, 10,250 acres would be in Alabama. Hill said officers told him the purpose was to furnish more training space.

YWCA Installs New Officials At Banquet

Mrs. Howard See Heads Leaders and Names Committees.

Mrs. Howard See, prominent clubwoman, was installed as president of the Atlanta Y. W. C. A. at the annual dinner meeting last night. She succeeded Mrs. Philip Graves, who occupied the presidency for two years.

Other new officers include Mrs. Everard Richardson Jr., first vice president; Mrs. Luther Rosser, second vice president; Mrs. L. J. Hollister, recording secretary; Miss Caroline Nicholson, corresponding secretary, and Miss Ethel Moore, treasurer.

Dr. Pierce Harris, pastor, First Methodist church, the principal speaker, spoke on "A Great City's Challenge to Christian Leadership." Miss Metta May Mitchell, general secretary, reviewed activities of the past year and emphasized opportunities for future growth.

Mrs. J. Chandler Burton, member of the 1940 nominating committee, introduced newly elected board members, in place of Mrs. Granger Hansell, nominating chairman, who was ill. New board members are Mrs. F. Phinizy Calhoun, Mrs. Carl Dodd, Mrs. Boling Jones Jr. and Mrs. H. B. Trimble.

Tribute was paid to the memory of Mrs. Hal Hentz, a life member of the Y. W. C. A., a former member of the board of directors and Camp Highland chairman. At the time of her death she was chairman of the world service committee, which she organized.

Among the special out-of-town guests were Miss Dorothy Sabiston, of New York, advisory secretary for business and professional girls at the national board of the Y. W. C. A., who is assisting business girls from the southeast plan a regional summer conference; Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Alexander, now of Chapel Hill and Washington, and Miss Sallie Maude Jones, a Y. W. C. A. life member from High Shoals, Ga.

In accepting the presidency for 1941, Mrs. See announced new committee appointments as follows: Business administration, Mrs. M. H. Elder; business girls' department, Mrs. Devereau McClatchey Jr.; Camp Highland, Mrs. Dan Clarke; girl reserve, Mrs. Chandler Burton; health education, Mrs. L. J. Hollister; industrial, Mrs. Francis Dwyer; inter-racial committee, Mrs. H. B. Couch Seeks State Control Of Taxi Firms

Bill Would Place Cabs Under Public Service Commission.

Regulation of taxicab companies in Georgia by the Georgia Public Service Commission was proposed yesterday in a bill introduced in the senate by Senator Hugh Couch, of Atlanta.

Under Couch's bill the Public Service Commission would have the power to fix rates and supervise the taxicab companies in the same manner that it regulates street railroads.

Clashes Frequent.

If it is enacted into law, Atlanta taxicabs will come under the jurisdiction of the commission. There have been frequent clashes between citizens of Atlanta and the taxicab company over service and rates. The municipality now regulates taxicabs by ordinance. The proposed measure specifically provides that the commission "may prescribe reasonable rules and regulations with reference to the service now rendered or to be rendered by persons, firms or corporations operating taxicabs in this state."

May Fix Rates.

It further adds that the commission "may determine what are just and reasonable rates and charges for such services" and that the orders may be rendered.

"For the purposes of this act, taxicabs shall be considered as common carriers and may be dealt with, controlled and regulated in the same manner and subject to the same procedure as other common carriers now under the jurisdiction of the Georgia Public Service Commission."

The bill was referred to the public utilities committee for study.

Delta To Make Atlanta Base For Big Fleet

New Hangar Is Nearly Ready for 21 Passenger Air Liners.

With the completion next week of the $130,000 hangar at Candler Field, Delta Air Line officials announced yesterday plans to make Atlanta the base for its fleet of 21 passenger airliners.

Oscar Bergstrom, district traffic manager of Delta Air Lines, announced some of the new planes are to be used on commuter flights between Atlanta and Birmingham plus the Charleston run, making Atlanta the base for Delta operations for this territory.

The planes cost $112,000 each,

BMI Agrees To Settlement In Music War

ASCAP Must Be Restrained Before Decree Is Effective.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—(UP) The Department of Justice today dropped antitrust proceedings against two major broadcasting companies and Broadcast Music, Inc., after BMI signed an agreement to refrain from certain practices in its current music war with the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

At the same time the department announced it intends to proceed promptly with criminal action against ASCAP which failed to reach agreement with the government in December.

ASCAP and BMI are rivals in a bitter feud which resulted in the barring of ASCAP music from broadcasts controlled by the big chains and also from some independent stations. The dispute began when NBC and CBS refused to renew ASCAP contracts which expired January 1.

The consent decree, to be filed at Milwaukee, Wis., where the ASCAP proceedings will take place, provides that:

1. BMI shall not exercise exclusive control, as an agent for any other person over the performing right of music for which it does not own the copyright.

2. All outlets of the same class shall be given equal terms and conditions for the use of copyright music.

3. Music will be licensed on a pay-when-you-play basis. Broadcasters can buy BMI music either by the piece or by the program. License fees cannot be assessed on programs on which BMI music is not used.

Network Licenses.

4. Licenses for use of music must be obtained by the networks or by the station originating a chain broadcast. Affiliated stations carrying the broadcast will not be required to have a license for the music on a chain program.

5. All manufacturers of electrical transcriptions, or sponsors, or advertisers, will be able to obtain licenses for use of such transcriptions for broadcast purposes.

6. Motion picture exhibitors, restaurants, hotel and radio stations will be able to obtain the right to perform any BMI compositions desired without being compelled to accept and pay for the entire BMI catalogue.

7. No attempt will be made by BMI to restrict the performance rights of its music for the purpose of regulating the price of recording its music on electrical transcriptions made for broadcast use.

12,000 U. S. Pilots Trained Yearly

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 27.—(P) "Doubling up" on available equipment is allowing the United States army air corps to turn out finished pilots at the rate of 12,000 yearly, Brigadier General J. C. Brandt, commandant of Randolph Field, Texas, said here today.

"Lack of good fighting and training craft is overcome by doubling up the use of our available equipment," the semi-bald, gray-mustached general said. "Our students fly all the time—day and night, rain or shine."

"And at the rate we're turning out crack airman, we'll shortly have the best air force in the world, barring none."

EGGS LAID FROM PERCH.

ELBERTON, Ga., Jan. 27.—Dr. Charles Johnson, Elberton dentist, has a pullet which, instead of laying in a nest, flies to her perch and drops her egg on the floor beneath, a distance of several feet.

plus radio equipment and accessories, and are powered by twin 1,200-horsepower motors and are capable of attaining a top speed of 217 miles per hour.

Delta officials announced, also, the innovation in food service—the "snack bar"—for the serving of delicacies and drinks while in flight.

In its operations through six of the most important states in the south, all of which are taking a vital part in America's national defense program, Delta announced a 62 per cent increase in passenger revenue in 1940 as compared with 1939. In the five years between 1935 and 1940, Delta's increase in passenger revenue has been 790 per cent. It's staff in Atlanta, during the same period, has increased from five to 175 men and its payroll and local purchases are nearing $1,000,000.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of these gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start tagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Atlanta Host To Vereen Bell, Noted Author

Writer's Newest Book, 'Swamp Water,' Wins Highest Praise.

By RALPH MCGILL.

Vereen Bell came to town yesterday to see a copy of his book—fresh from the publishers. It is "Swamp Water," the serialized form of which ran in the Saturday Evening Post, concluding a few weeks ago. It is the story of the Okefenokee swamp and it was good enough for the movies to grab and to assign Henry Fonda to play the part of Ben Ragan.

The book will be on sale February 19 and if Georgia doesn't buy and read this book, it will be most unfair to itself and to one of the best writers of fiction in America.

Vereen Bell is a great hand to read. He remembers the Bible statement which allows that everything happens for the best. He remembers a lot of little things that have influenced his life.

Davidson Graduate.

In 1932 he was graduated from Davidson College. There weren't many jobs in 1932. He tried asking for a job from an Atlanta newspaper and was turned down. He was walking along the street when he saw a friend, Greer Martin, standing, waiting for a bus.

The bus was five minutes late. And that was what made Vereen Bell a writer.

If the bus hadn't been late he wouldn't have stopped. And if he hadn't stopped he wouldn't have talked with Greer Martin and decided to make a trip to Louisiana. If he hadn't driven to Louisiana and Lake Charles with Greer Martin he wouldn't have met Fred Litten, the very first writer Vereen Bell ever met.

But the bus was late and he did stop and he did meet Fred Litten. But Vereen Bell was so timid he didn't say anything about wanting to be a writer. He waited until he got home and wrote Fred Litten. He wanted to go out and study under Litten. Litten said to come ahead.

In that fashion he cut years of apprenticeship out of his life. He was lucky, too, that the first writer he met was Fred Litten. Because he knew what he was doing. A lot of writers don't.

Dog Stories Great.

Vereen Bell has sold everything he has written, including the very first novel he wrote.

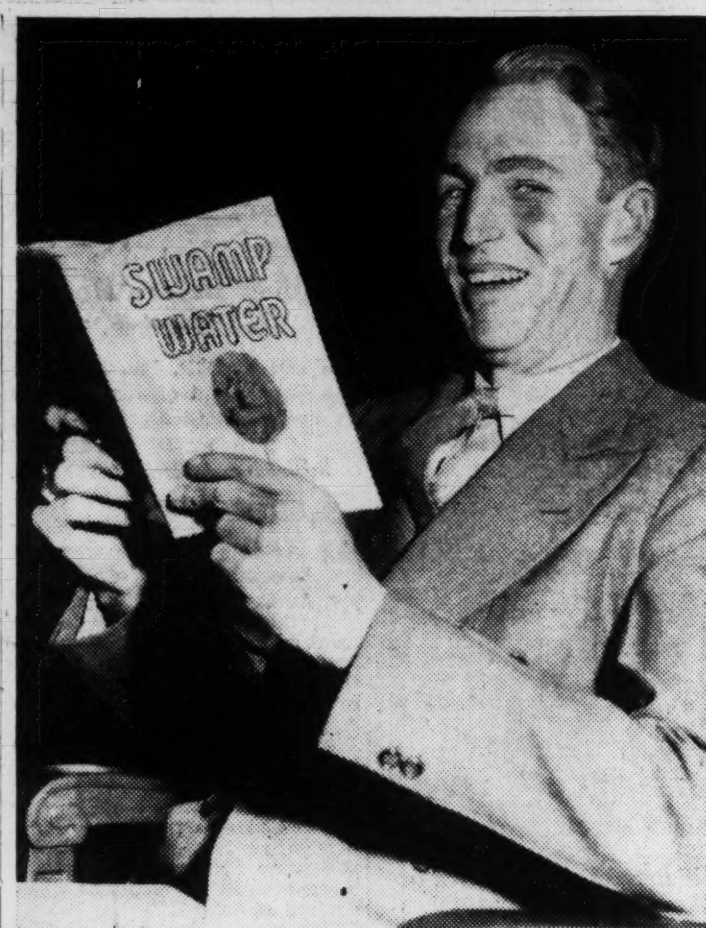

He is the only man now writing who knows the bird dog stuff which is in many of his stories. His bird dog stories are flawless and some day, if you didn't do it, the armistice agreement followed acceptance by Bangkok and Vichy of an offer by Japan to mediate territorial disputes which had led to extensive border warfare.

JAPANESE CRUISER TO BE PARLEY SITE

SAIGON, Indo-China, Jan. 27.—(UP)—Negotiations to mediate the undeclared war between French Indo-China and Thailand (Siam) will begin Wednesday aboard the Japanese cruiser Natori. It was announced officially tonight. The Japanese cruiser will arrive here Tuesday.

SEA ISLAND ACREAGE.

TIFTON, Ga., Jan. 27.—(P)—Tift county growers of Sea Island cotton, which brought as high as 36 1-2 cents a pound last year, expect to plant about 625 acres again this season, County Agent C. B. Culpepper reported.

PLEASED—Vereen Bell, author of "Swamp Water," a story of the Okefenokee swamp, looks over a first edition of his book and appears happy about the whole thing.

you should find "A Dog for a Man" and read it.

He's busy now on a story about a battle on the St. Mary's river in 1815, when 25 Georgians drove off 300 Englishmen who were trying to come up the river on barges. Killed 150 of them, too, and didn't lose a man.

He also is sweating. He has got to go through a luncheon and an afternoon of autographing books. If you haven't ordered one yet, do so because it's really a fine story. It's a true story of the big swamp written truly because he is an honest writer. The head of the biological survey at the swamp wrote the Post it was the truest story of the swamp he'd ever seen.

Vereen Bell is such a very fine person that all who know him are trying to tell the news about his book—"Swamp Water." You'll like it.

at the CITY HALL

First meeting of the newly appointed Atlanta Board of Firemasters will be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight at headquarters, with Councilman Howard Haire, chairman, presiding. Only routine matters are slated for consideration, administration officials said.

Mayor LeCraw, other city officials and a committee of five outstanding citizens will discuss city traffic problems at a conference slated for 3 o'clock this afternoon in the executive offices. The discussions are expected to open the way for tackling traffic congestion and accidents from an engineering point of view.

Reorganization of the city planning commission with T. Elton Drake slated for election as chairman will take place at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the city hall. Immediately after the reorganization, the commission will go into its first business session of 1941.

Final conferences in connection with the proposed merger of the Albert Steiner Cancer Clinic with Grady hospital are slated for this morning, it was said yesterday. Mayor LeCraw, Eugene Oberdorfer, member of the Steiner trustees, and Thomas K. Glenn, chairman of the Grady board, are to discuss definite agreements during the day, and it was reported full accord will be reached.

LeCraw said he will offer to Joseph Hirsch, senior member of the Steiner administrators, a vacant place on the Grady board. If Hirsch does not accept the position it will be offered to Oberdorfer.

Birth Day Dance Tickets on Sale

Dances will be held at the Ansley, Henry Grady and Biltmore hotels, the Atlanta municipal auditorium, Capital City Club, Piedmont Driving Club, and the Standard Club.

Adamsville Lodge No. 171, F. & A. M., will have a "Re-dedication Night" at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the hall on Gordon road. Speakers include J. Wilson Parker and the Rev. Woolsey E. Couch.

Atlanta Civitan Club will meet at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Atlanta Athletic Club. The Canadian Pacific Railroad will present a travelogue in color and sound.

Atlanta chapter of the American Red Cross will hold its annual meeting at 6:30 o'clock tonight at the Henry Grady hotel. Dr. Pierce Harris will speak and Miss Minna Hecker will sing.

DeKalb Civil Auxiliary will meet at 10:30 o'clock this morning in the Decatur city hall. Dr. Homer Allen will discuss "Venereal Disease Control in DeKalb County."

Third Ward Improvement Civic Club will meet at 8 o'clock tonight at the Lula L. Kingsberry school. Officers will be elected and the proposed new Jones avenue bridge will be discussed by J. E. Bowden. J. Howard Monroe will preside and a new set of by-laws will be adopted.

Capitol City Lodge, No. 33, Knights of Pythias, recently installed the following new officers: H. C. Holbrook, chancellor; commander; M. S. Stow, vice chancellor; R. W. Huey, prelate; W. R. Meyer, master of works; T. Emory Bradley, K. of R. & S.; G. Seals Aiken, master of finance; M. B. Hanna, M. of E.; C. P. Aiken, M. at A.; J. D. Parker, inner guard; Glenn Starr, outer guard; Dr. Jay D. Bradley, honorable Alexander; and W. Stephens and John E. Dinos, trustees.

Professor D. T. Rowlingston, assistant professor of the New Testament in the Candler School of Theology at Emory University, will deliver the final address in the series of lectures of the Y. M. C. A. Bible Club at 6:45 o'clock tonight at the Y. M. C. A. building, 145 Luckie street.

Georgian Named Head Of Miami Red Cross

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 27.—J. Fritz Thompson, prominent Athenian and field worker for the National Red Cross since 1936, has been named executive director of the Dade county (Miami, Fla.) chapter of the Red Cross.

Mr. Thompson will take up his new duties February 1. A resident of Athens for 12 years, he is 37 years old. He took a leading role in disaster relief work in Gainesville after the 1936 tornado, and in the Ohio river flood in 1937, and in Albany and Beaufort, S. C., after tornadoes last year.

'Met' to Appear For Three Days Here in April

Tibbett, Martinelli and Jepson Among Stars Coming to Atlanta.

The Metropolitan Opera Association will appear in a three-day opera season in Atlanta this year beginning April 28, it was announced last night by Mrs. Harold Coole, president of the Atlanta Music Club. The operas will include famous Italian, French and German works by the foremost Metropolitan stars. The program was arranged by Marvin McDonald, manager of the season, on a recent trip to New York. When he returned Monday morning, he submitted plans to the music club which approved the program for the season.

Monday evening, April 28, will be a three-star performance of Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" with Stella Roman, soprano; Frederick Jagel, tenor, and Leonard Warren, baritone. The second opera of the evening will be Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci" with Jarmila Novotna, lyric soprano; Giovanni Martinelli, tenor, and Lawrence Tibbett, baritone. Between the operas the Metropolitan Ballet will present a complete performance.

Gounod's "Faust," starring Helen Jepson, soprano; Richard Bonelli, baritone; and Ezio Pinza, basso; and either Charles Kullman or Jussi Boerling, tenor, will be the opera for Tuesday evening, April 29. This opera is included on the All-Star Concert Series for 1940-41, and only 1,500 seats will be offered for sale. Others are included in the season tickets of the concert series.

Wednesday evening, April 30, the Atlanta Music Club will present Wagner's "Lohengrin" with Marjorie Lawrence, soprano; Kerstin Thorborg, contralto; Lauritz

Melchior, tenor; and Herbert Jansen, baritone. The conductors of the three operas will be Giuseppe Papi, Wilfred Pelletier and Eric Leinsdorf.

Tickets at $5, $4 and $3 go on sale immediately for these 8 o'clock evening performances. All orders and inquiries should be addressed to the Atlanta Music Club, 235 Peachtree street.

Already about 2,500 advance orders, about one-half the auditorium's capacity, have been received for tickets to the Monday and Wednesday evening programs. The Tuesday evening seats are even fewer because of the concert series tie-in. Mrs. College announced that orders for tickets will be filled strictly in the manner in which they are received.

J. Gordon Hardy, former deputy sheriff and one of the candidates for coroner in the recent special election, yesterday was appointed bailiff of criminal court by Judge John S. McClelland. He takes the place of the late R. B. Deavors.

County Commissioners' Association of Georgia will hold its annual convention April 30 to May 2 at Albany, it was announced yesterday. Ed Almond, of the Fulton county commission, is chairman of the board of managers of the state association which set the date.

2 Million Cotton Covers Will Be Manufactured

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—(P)—The Agriculture Department announced today 2,000,000 cotton bale covers for cotton would be manufactured under the 1941 program to encourage the use of this covering instead of jute bagging. Under the program, similar to one, in effect in 1939 and 1940, a subsidy of 15 cents a cover will be made to manufacturers holding approved applications. J. B. Wyckoff, marketing division chief, estimated manufacture of 2,000,000 bale covers would require approximately 22,000 bales of cotton.

SELF-IMPROVEMENT

The longer winter evenings offer ideal opportunities for self-improvement by means of leisurely reading. No man or woman ever lost out by increasing his or her knowledge of the world's best literature. On the contrary, every added bit of knowledge must some day play a helpful role in life and living.

The Washington Service Bureau of The Atlanta Constitution has a packet of three interesting and helpful booklets which you will be glad to own. They are:

1. THE WORLD'S BEST BOOKS—a reading list of the finest in all fields of literature; suggestions for every member of the family of good books to read for pleasure and profit.
2. FAVORITE POEMS—a selection of 28 famous and favorite poems, including those most often quoted.
3. PROVERBS—a collection of the proverbs and folk sayings of many lands.

Send the coupon below, with 25¢ cents enclosed, for your packet of these three booklets:

F. M. Kerby, Dept. SIP-1, Constitution Service Bureau, 1013 Thirteenth St., Washington, D. C.

I enclose 25¢ in coin (carefully wrapped) to cover return postage, handling and other costs for the Self-Improvement packet of three booklets:

Invasion Peril City Rejects Gasoline Bids, All Identical

Aviation Expert Favors 'Spreading Out' U. S. Plane Plant.

"I have no fear of Germany invading the United States," Major Al Williams, world famous flier and aviation authority, said on his arrival in Atlanta yesterday for a two-day visit.

The major warned European countries that it would take literally a bridge of ships extending from shore to shore to threaten this nation and he added "what a juicy target that would make for our airmen."

When asked about the number of planes in Germany's possession today, Major Williams replied he did not know, but added that a bit of inside information supplied him some time ago proved clearly their facilities for building and their total present air strength could be in the neighborhood of 50,000 planes.

Major Williams said that he was a strong advocate of the plan to scatter our aviation plants over the nation, so the bombing of two or three plants would not seriously harm defense productions. Germany he said had 1,700 plants scattered over the whole of their country.

French Chiefs To Stake Lives As Guarantee

Decree Gives Petain Power To Punish Former High Officials.

VICHY, France, Jan. 27.—(P)—Marshal Philippe Petain's already vast powers as personal leader of France were bulwarked tonight by a new decree of allegiance which would enable him to prosecute and punish the misdeeds of ministers and other high officials of the last ten years.

The old constitution specifically forbade retroactive laws, and in this connection informed circles recalled that the ouster of Pierre Laval as Petain's vice premier and foreign minister followed business actions which Petain disapproved but which later proved apparently blameless.

The new constitutional act makes officials responsible with their persons and property for fulfilling their posts for the good of the state.

(An end of the month-old stalemate in relations between Adolf Hitler and the French government appeared imminent tonight after reports that a message from Hitler is en route to Vichy, the United Press said.)

(Today authoritative French quarters hailed the statement by Former United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt in Washington that he believes the French navy would be scuttled if any power attempted to seize it.)

'Looks Like Collusion,' Says LeCraw in Requesting 'Price.'

Bids for 40,000 gallons of gasoline were rejected summarily yesterday by the city purchasing committee when nine major oil companies placed the same bid—13 1/2 cents a gallon. Municipal departments use about 40,000 gallons of gasoline a month.

Immediately after turning down the bids, some committee members voiced the opinion that the city may be forced to place its own tanks at strategic points in the city and buy in tank lots to "obtain a reasonable price."

Mayor LeCraw said he hoped "some company will come forward and give us a price" adding "the fact that all these bids are the same looks like collusion."

Alderman L. O. Moseley, committee chairman, pointed out that the committee took its action in executive session after the mayor had attacked the nine identical bids in an open session of the committee, and that the city group had acted to see if it could get "real bids."

Purchase of about $60,000 worth of city equipment was authorized by the committee at the same meeting at which the gasoline bids were turned down. Included among the purchases were a year's contract for cement and hydrants, valves, fittings and pipe for the water department.

LeCraw several days ago launched a drive to reduce the cost of motor fuel and the committee's decision was regarded as an effort to back the mayor.

Italians' Tank Attack Stopped Cold by Greeks

Rome Troops Leave Many Dead, Wounded, Prisoners.

ATHENS, Jan. 27.—(P)—Reinforced Italian infantrymen fighting north of Klisura, Albania, counterattacked with the aid of tanks, but again were thrown back with severe losses, a Greek government spokesman said tonight. Specific locations were not given by the spokesman, who said repeated Fascist attacks were aimed at holding strategic heights. "Our army again gained ground, mopping up the terrain where the Italians left many dead and wounded, and taking 147 prisoners."

Railway Service Veteran Succumbs at 80; Burial Today.

G. W. Harlan, 80-year-old retired railway mail clerk, of 10 East Shadowlawn avenue, died Sunday night in a private hospital.

A veteran of 40 years in the postal service, he had been a member of the First Christian church for 50 years and had served as an elder for the past 30 years.

Surviving are his wife; a daughter, Miss Helen Harlan; and two sons, H. R. Harlan, of Covington, Ky., and H. L. Harlan, of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at Spring Hill, with Dr. C. R. Stauffer officiating. Burial will be in Crown Hill cemetery.

Escaped Nazi Charged With Theft of Boat

Canadian Warrant May Be Used To Return German Pilot.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., Jan. 27.—(P)—Baron Franz von Werra, youthful Nazi aviator, has been charged with theft by Canadian provincial police in a move interpreted by authorities here as an effort to return the escaped pilot to Canada.

Police Chief Herbert S. Myers said today a warrant filed with him by Constable Alex MacLeod, of Prescott, Ont., charged the baron with theft of a $35 boat, with which he crossed the St. Lawrence river last Friday night into the United States.

Von Werra, who claims to have downed 14 "enemy" planes before being forced down in England September 7 and to have fled from two prison camps, went sightseeing in New York City today.

He is to appear before a federal grand jury in Albany Thursday on the illegal entry charge. Werra may have had a companion in his trip across the St. Lawrence. Customs officers said two sets of footprints led away from the boat at Ogdensburg.

Idealism and Reality

Many sincere and idealistic gentlemen, to whom the very suggestion of being the organs of Hitlerian propaganda is thoroughly repulsive, have regrettably permitted themselves to voice the tenets of Nazism as surely as if they were Goebbels' agents. This is one of the most unfortunate aspects of their constant espousal of isolationism for America.

No sane man can question the high purposes and the sincere Americanism of men like Robert Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, who in a recent radio address proposed that instead of aiding Britain this nation leave other free men to their peril and concentrate its powers on the task of forming an ideal state, politically uncorrupt and socially infallible, so that other peoples, envious of our God-like perfection, would overthrow their rulers and imitate our Utopia. Conversely, it becomes equally difficult to believe that President Hutchins is at all aware of the imminent peril to the gains toward freedom and justice we have already made, of the peril in which they already stand. We must first save these before we create more.

As it is with Hutchins, so it is with other less famous men, even in our own midst. Idealistic and honestly desirous of continued peace, they foresee that world of tomorrow which we should all most devoutly wish; yet, like the man who looks across the chasm to the green fields beyond, they are in imminent peril of falling to their deaths before they reach the goal they seek.

It is the very faith and confidence which these idealistic men already hold and which they inspire that renders them the more dangerous to our security. Almost without exception, the advocates of the ostrich method of foreign policy are men of high vision but little sense of present reality. The noble and high-sounding phrases they employ are pleasant to hear but dangerously academic.

France, Belgium, Norway, Holland, yes, even England itself, once had their idealists who gazed so far ahead that they did not see the assassin behind until they felt his dagger in their backs. We cannot and do not question their Americanism; we can but educate them to understand the tragic role their brothers in the conquered and slave nations played in their own lands.

Our sympathy for the purposes of these idealists should be democratically honorable, but our determination that they shall not prevail must be all-powerful.

A Minneapolis factory is feeding vitamins to the hands. As this is liable to make the boys feel like doing more work, they will need more pay.

Y. W. C. A.

One of the most valuable organizations to the life of Atlantans last night marked the end of another year of service. The Young Women's Christian Association held its annual meeting and reported on a twelvemonth of constructive work among the young womanhood of the city.

Quietly, without ostentation, this organization has gone on, through the years, building better womanhood and providing a center for girls and young women which has become, to hundreds, the place where they gained a new and finer outlook upon the problems of life.

The Y. W. C. A. activities are almost as varied as the interests of life. Social, cultural, physical opportunities are offered that contribute to the well-rounded individual. A girl may not only form valuable friendships there, she may study and better herself for life and she may enjoy the advantages of swimming pool and gym in the winter, of camp life and outdoor sports in the summer.

The Y. W. C. A. is one of Atlanta's finest assets. It is to be hoped that soon a better and more suitable building may be secured for its housing.

One towel a year is the new ration for the unhappy Japanese, and as things are going in China he will need more than that for crying purposes.

Timely Conference

The conference of agricultural leaders of the federal government and of 11 southern states, now in progress here, could hardly be more timely. With the announced purpose of the meeting a discussion of plans to raise farm living standards through increased planting of crops for home consumption, there will, undoubtedly, be consideration also of the rapidly expanding market for such products, because of the defense program activities in this section.

It is the policy of the army to purchase all supplies possible in the vicinity of use. Thus time and expense of lengthy hauling is eliminated.

The Army is building as fast as possible great cantonments and other training and equipment centers all through the south. There will thus be provided local markets for all the food and feed crops that the farmers of the south can raise.

Now is the time, above all, for southern farmers to abandon the ruinous one-crop system. With export markets gone, there is, comparatively speaking, no market for cotton. The present surplus on hand is sufficient to take care of domestic demands for a year.

The farmer who devotes his effort to the growing of food and feed crops, first for the support and enjoyment of his family, who thus practices the "live-at-home" policy, and who offers his surplus, in marketable condition, to local purchasers or to the Army, will find himself on a plane of living hitherto undreamed. Never was so golden an opportunity presented to the south to place its agriculture on an independent, prosperous and progressive "live-at-home" basis.

Undoubtedly the conferees in Atlanta realize this and they will endeavor, through their discussions and plan making, to offer the southern farmer every possible aid in carrying out such a program.

"For all I care about the desert, you can have it," cried the captured Italian general. And when Whoosis is through with Europe, you can have that, too.

The Auditorium

It is sincerely to be hoped that restoration of the city auditorium, recently damaged by fire, will not be delayed. Any notion of false economy which resulted in delaying repairs to the building would prove, in the long run, to be nothing but injurious parsimony.

A modern, adequate auditorium is as essential to a modern city as any of its public facilities. The money that is brought to a city, and placed in circulation, by use of a good auditorium, is money that forms no inconsiderable part of the total city income. Not only through its use by conventions and business gatherings, but through the cultural and entertainment attractions offered, the auditorium annually brings to Atlanta many thousands of dollars.

To leave the auditorium in its present condition for any length of time would be only less disastrous than to allow the streets to decay and revert to hole-filled trails, on the plea that the money spent on paving repairs must be saved. Without auditorium or without streets of smooth pavement, the modern city is but a crippled municipality.

Let Hitler beware. The meek shall inherit the earth; already, a North Carolina naturalist has uncovered a fly that eats spiders.

Editorial Symposium

MR. WILLKIE CARRIES ON

Drummed out of the Republican party by the CHICAGO TRIBUNE for his acceptance of most of the provisions of the lease-lend bill, and fended by the OMAHA WORLD-HERALD, Wendell L. Willkie continues a center of controversy even as he examines life in London. Quoting the TRIBUNE, "... if Mr. Willkie has not already picked up his hat, it should be handed to him. He should not longer be consulted in the national party organization, should have no place in its councils, and should neither give nor be asked advice. The party will take leave of its late standard bearer with the hope it will never see him again, or he it," the WORLD-HERALD calls the editorial effort "An amusing piece" and believes, "If the country were still steeped in partisanship, if the people still acted as Republicans or Democrats, it might well be called a masterpiece. But that isn't the way things are, now in 1941."

Too, the DETROIT NEWS rebukes the TRIBUNE, declaring, "Those who drag partisanship into Mr. Willkie's endorsement of the lease-lend bill 'show small understanding either of the issue or, as we believe, of the gravity of the people in general attach to it.' And the CHICAGO NEWS 'is proud that it supported Willkie in the last election. His recent statements have proved that he is indeed what we believed him to be—a man of principle and courage and conscience, a forthright man, a leader to be relied on.' At the same time, the BOSTON HERALD sums up with: 'What the future holds for Mr. Willkie, whether he will have a career in education, in industry or in politics, is unknown to the people at present. It may fairly be said of him, however, that he has gained stature since the election and that he is probably even more popular than he was.'"

Mr. Willkie has again "revealed his statesmanship," and his "trip to England will dramatize the question before congress as nothing else can do it," comments the EMPORIA GAZETTE. The CHARLOTTE OBSERVER holds that "Mr. Willkie shows himself in this matter to be as big-hearted and broadminded in his Americanism as his friends have always claimed him to be." In the opinion of the MINNEAPOLIS STAR-JOURNAL, "Willkie has contributed to national unity in the most constructive way... by his action."

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

THE PURVIS SCHEDULE WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The President and William S. Knudsen now have on their desks the first consolidated schedule of British war needs ever prepared. To meet these needs, our industrial plants must undergo immense additional expansions. Because the British have no cash, the schedule has simply been gathering dust since it was brought to this country, four weeks ago, by Arthur Purvis, chief of the British purchasing mission. It will continue to gather dust until the lease-lend bill is passed. Furthermore, if letting contracts for the new expansions is put off much longer, the entire British war plan will have to be recalculated, and another year may be added to the war. The British propose to take the offensive in the spring of 1942, and rely on this country to supply their deficiencies in war materials as listed in the Purvis schedule. Defense production experts believe the deficiencies can be supplied on time—but only if the tremendous task of building the required new facilities is started within the next 30 to 60 days.

SITUATION MISREPRESENTED Such are the hard facts of a situation which has been almost universally misrepresented. Even among supporters of aid to Britain, many assume the lease-lend bill can safely be debated indefinitely, since "there's nothing we can do in the next months." The assumption is doubly incorrect, for the crucial reason above stated, and also because the bill permits solution of the increasingly serious shipping problem without repeal of the neutrality act or use of American convoys.

The Purvis schedule is unquestionably the most significant single document yet produced by the war. It was obtained with difficulty. As long ago as last September, officials of the Defense Commission and British purchasing mission wise enough to grasp the inadequacy of our scope of preparation, began to realize that Britain must succinctly list her needs to have them fully met by this country. At that time, of course, American policy was immobilized by the election. It was not until late in the fall that Purvis flew to England to persuade the British cabinet to communicate to our government a complete war plan and war material balance sheet.

The President has been demanding a balance sheet of our defense program for the last six months. So many statistical obstacles have had to be surmounted that the President is still waiting, although he will get what he wants before long. The same sort of obstacles stood in Purvis' way in London. Yet he managed to beg and persuade the necessary figures and information out of the service and supply departments in a comparatively short time. The schedule was finished in December, and Purvis immediately flew back to this country.

CLOSELY GUARDED SECRETS To prepare the schedule it was necessary to compute Britain's war materials on hand, the quantities of new materials called for by the British war plan, the materials expected to be produced in Britain and the empire, and finally the deficiencies to be supplied here. As the result plainly discloses Britain's strategy, the schedule's exact figures are not to be divulged. The most closely guarded military secrets, communicated by Purvis only to the President, and by the President only to three or four of the most responsible men in the government.

Two things about the schedule are known, however. First, it is based on the expectation that Britain will survive the terrible time immediately ahead, will gather strength next winter and, with arms from the United States will undertake a great offensive in the spring of 1942. This expectation is understood to have been impressively documented, and particularly with respect to the possibility of an effective offensive. Second, however, the quantities of arms asked for from this country are almost astronomical. Even William S. Knudsen, ordinarily so phlegmatic, was briefly shaken when he saw how many more planes and ships were wanted. And, although he and his production experts think they can do the job in time, a prompt start and grim concentration of every ounce of national energy are both urgently necessary for success.

THE FOLLY OF DELAY

If the policy of aid to Britain means anything, its purpose is not merely to get the British through the spring and summer. On the contrary, its purpose is to rid the British of the world's risk for good and all, of the universal threat of the new tyranny. If this is to be accomplished, the United States must begin to take the long view, gearing its output to the British war plan, and avoiding both foolish delay and foolish underestimation of the task in hand. The magnitude of that task is clearly set down in the Purvis schedule, which also gives evidence that the task is not impossible. It will be done, the experts calculate, if we convert only 25 per cent of our productive facilities to war uses. As Germany 25 years ago and Britain for months have devoted much more than 50 per cent of their production to war uses, we should not boggle at the attendant sacrifices. Sacrifices will be useless, however, so long as some system of financing the British war effort remains to be approved. For the last two months the British have not been able to place even the most urgent orders in this country. Planning the expansions called for in the Purvis schedule has had to wait while British and American officials searched for a way out to finance contracts that should have been placed in November. Only in the last week has the RFC approved a scheme by which money will be put on the basis of "we'll take the goods if you don't," and this scheme is only to apply to absolutely vital orders. Some notion of the extent of the expansions yet to be planned may be gained from the fact that the curve of our aircraft capacity will have to shoot upwards, past the mark of 3,000 planes a month now set for the spring of 1942, to a new mark of 4,500. In short, time is unimaginably precious, and the waste of so much as a day is folly.

Irresponsible Ignorance

From a casual conversation overheard the other day it was possible to piece together a story that illustrates the complete lack of knowledge of some of the simplest rules of the social order that marks some people. Folks without education to speak of, whose lives have been spent out of touch with most of the facts of our time take for granted. People who have existed in self-centered, bovine solomence.

The story was about a young man, son of a small farmer. The boy had walked to the city and enlisted in the army. After due time he had been granted leave of absence to go home.

Arrived home he stayed. First one day over his leave, another and another. And so he got married. His father said the boy and his bride could live at home, but that the boy would have to quit that soldiering foolishness and help with the farm work.

So, now, the boy may be seen practically every day following the plow mules up and down the field, still wearing the uniform, which is much the worse for wear. Apparently he has forgotten all about returning to the army and is satisfied he can quit Uncle Sam's service as casually as he enlisted.

Of course, one of these days, the boy will be found and arrested and sent to a military camp and punishment, probably several years in the penitentiary, for desertion.

But he'll still, in all probability, be wondering what it's all about and wherein he has done anything wrong.

Patchwork Quilt

It is probably, as described by Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., an inspiring cavalcade of American history. And it is, undoubtedly a piece of screen inspiration that everyone should see and everyone will enjoy.

But I can't help thinking of a patchwork quilt when I read about this just-released feature picture. It is called "Land of Liberty" and is made up of excerpts from 112 feature pictures, short subjects and newsreels. It is further described as a "vivid

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Answer to Lindbergh.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—It will answer much of Colonel Lindbergh's recent testimony to recall that the German nation, as personified by Adolf Hitler, has shown itself to be such a liar, thief and assassin that it would be folly for the United States to attempt to do business with a victorious Germany on a basis of good faith. Lindbergh believes it will be necessary to get along with Germany should Hitler win. Other possibilities intervene, but to ignore all these and reduce the problem to its simplest phase, the fact is that Lindbergh asks his own country to undertake relations with a nation whose spiritual leader has written in the sky the fact that his promises are lies and that anyone who trusts him is a fool.

In relations between man and man the individual whose conduct resembles that of Adolf Hitler acquires a reputation as a no-good, to say nothing of a criminal record. In time he is shunned by all but other criminals, and he can't get credit for a small beer.

Hitler's record of betrayal began long before Czecho-Slovakia but, not to go all the way back, that brutal killing will do for a starter. He gave his word not to invade or annex Czecho-Slovakia even to the extent of saying that he wanted none of the contemptible Czechs, and followed that assurance with a military conquest for which he didn't even bother to offer an excuse.

Nations Under Guns.

Finally, in response to a note from President Roosevelt imploring him to keep the peace, Hitler specifically asked a larger number of nations to say frankly whether they felt that their safety was threatened by Germany, and used their answers in the form of a rebuke to the United States for meddling in European affairs and impugning the sacred honor of the German people. Living right under Germany's big guns, Poland, Norway, Denmark, The Netherlands, Belgium and Rumania replied that of course they had no such fear and, having no honor to lose, Hitler took that occasion further to assure all these and others that he never would so much as take a divot out of their sovereign lands.

Nobody, except perhaps Lindbergh, needs telling what Hitler did to these countries, notwithstanding these and other, more detailed, solemn pledges of that which is called the sacred honor of the German race. However, it will emphasize the perfidy of the Fuehrer to recall that in the undeclared war on peaceful Norway, Hitler began operations by sending over in civilian guise young soldiers who, as babies, had been saved from starvation and sheltered in the very homes of the Norwegian people, to whom they had returned as welcomed foster children. When the hour struck, these exemplars and guardians of the German honor turned on the people who had sheltered and fed them as helpless victims of the first World War.

That is the honor with which Lindbergh would have his own country conduct relations in the world of the future, the sort of people, schooled in treachery and taught to regard deceit as a personal, national and racial virtue, whom the colonel would meet on terms of good faith.

Offer No Plan.

Lindbergh, and those who believe as he does, offer no plan by which this nation, in that future world, could protect itself from treachery backed by brutality which have been described so often and in such detail that they are now old and familiar horrors. But just as an honest man cannot do business on even terms with a thief and cheat, it would seem that the United States must either be entirely apart from a victorious Germany and her slave states and keep constantly armed to fight the greatest war machine in all history, wholly, or abandon the morals which civilized people try, at least, to live up to and become a criminal nation, too, in collaboration with Hitler.

I have read Lindbergh's speeches and testimony carefully, and find that his early omissions of spiritual or moral things were not accidental. He has consistently dealt with material things as though a strong, rich America bulging with muscle were all right even though it were necessary to discard the virtues that give warmth to human existence. He ignores entirely Hitler's own recent declaration that Hitlerism is at war with the American concept and that never the twain shall meet except to fight.

ganda, while the underground channels are spewing forth their intolerance and subtle stories of inevitable Axis victory, it seems to me to be a good thing to encourage as many as possible to see, to hear, to read everything that will cut through the deliberately created clouds of confusion to the simple fundamentals of American freedom, American ideals, and remind us, once again, of the straight demarcation between tyranny and liberty for all men.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH Mc GILL.

"PAP SUCKERS AND PATRIOTS"

The Lord lost a powerful exhorter when Eugene Talmadge turned his face toward politics instead of the pulpit. He would have had them coming in droves to the mourners' bench. The sawdust trail would have been crowded when he preached. The man is a born exhorter. He would have given them no milk-and-water sermons, but plenty of the hell-fire and damnation and repent or sizzle on the eternal griddle. He would have fetched them.

His speech yesterday to the joint session of the legislature was a surprisingly good one. He had his budget to sell and I think he sold it. There are those who say there will be enough opposition to demand a regular appropriations bill to defeat his budget proposal. But I doubt it. It was a masterly job of selling. He fired both barrels and I kept thinking, "What a preacher he would have made."

He was chagrined, he said, to find that the bill which would establish a four-year term for the Governor's office, beginning with the next term, set the salary at the old figure, $7,500. He asked them to reduce it to $5,000. In fact, he appointed each of them a committee of one to see that the Governor's salary be reduced to that amount.

"Make it so patriots will be willing to serve their state at a small salary," he said. "Let this state point the way. When you pay large salaries you get pap suckers instead of patriots."

Some there were who suggested, with heavy irony, that the bill should carry an amendment giving to the Governor, the chancellor and others a hot-dog stand at some convenient and profitable location as a method of enabling them to carry on. The bill does seem a little harsh on those who expect to remain in their profession and not disappear with each new Governor.

But, patriots or not, there is to be little consumption of pap if Mr. Talmadge can have his way about it.

HE DIDN'T LOOK KISSED

Mr. Talmadge is not angry with anyone. He has taken as his text Mr. Wiley Moore's "We Ain't Mad With Nobody." He spoke yesterday for the bill which would restore an old provision to the statute books of the state; one which would enable the Governor to suspend the state treasurer and the comptroller. He asked for the right, with an amendment. This was that, within 30 days after suspension, the legislature must be called into special session to ratify or nullify the suspension.

He brought the George Hamilton issue squarely before the joint session. "I made George Hamilton," he said. "I appointed him. I loved him then and I love him now."

Mr. Hamilton was standing along the wall of the house chamber with others who crowded in to hear the speech. He made no show of emotion, but he did not exactly look as if he considered himself hugged and kissed. But, maybe he did. At any rate, the Governor clearly let it be known that he was not angry. Not only that, but that he loved everybody. Love, he said, was the greatest force on earth.

Mr. Hamilton, through the whole affair, has emulated the Tar Baby. And, as everybody knows, the Tar Baby "he don't say nothin'." Nothing at all.

The Governor said it was either his budget or new taxes. And that he had never voted for a tax increase in his life and hoped he never would. But, if his budget was turned down by the legislature, it would mean new taxes.

He was so very good that even yet they do not realize how very softly but very definitely he placed the full responsibility for any new taxes squarely in the lap of the legislators themselves.

THE KEYSTONE

Talmadge's plan, in brief, would allow him to take the surplus in any department and use it to pay any outstanding obligation. As the law now stands, the surplus in one department may not be used in another.

If the state treasurer should refuse to pay out the money, claiming the constitutional requirements of an appropriation bill, it would block the budget law even if it should pass.

Talmadge insists that once the legislature passes the budget bill it will be legal for the state treasurer to honor the warrants. He pointed to a precedent established by past legislatures.

It is for this reason he wants power to suspend the state treasurer and comptroller. If they do not agree it is legal he would have the right to suspend them and call a special session of the legislature to review the suspension.

There will be some opposition. Roy Harris, the thorn in the side of the administration, believes he has enough votes in the house to block it. There are some who are worrying the administration by saying, "We are for the administration but we can't follow along on this..."

But, administration leaders say, there always are those. They remain confident that when the vote is taken they will come through, with the budget measure receiving a safe majority. Mr. Talmadge has, I think, loved them into it.

We All Believe In the Rule of the Best, Provided the Best Means Us

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

In its original and true significance, aristocracy meant the rule of the best. And that is obviously the sanest and most efficient form of government.

The fly in the ointment is the difficulty of persuading everybody to agree on the identity of the best. It is like classifying people as good and bad; those who do it are always the good.

In the last general election in Norway, Quisling's party got less than three per cent of the votes, and he admits that he never could have won his present power if the people had been free to choose. He was therefore quite logical when he said to an American writer: "I distrust parliamentary government with its numerous parties."

It was equivalent to saying: "A free election wouldn't have made me the boss; therefore free elections are foolish and wrong."

When young New Dealers defended the using of relief money to influence voters, they said in effect: "The practice may be evil, as a rule, but it seemed necessary to keep our crowd in control, and therefore it was justified."

Mr. Roosevelt himself admitted that he had obtained from congress extraordinary powers which might be dangerous in the hands of another man. In his case, however, such powers were justified, for he would use them wisely and well to serve the people.

That way of thinking is natural and wholly logical. If a man sincerely believes himself the only one qualified to govern, he must also believe himself justified in gaining control by any means that may be necessary. And if one group or class believes itself the only one wise enough to govern well, it must feel justified in gaining control by force if that is necessary.

But unless a ruling group is chosen by Heaven, its superior fitness is a matter of opinion. If that opinion is held by a majority, it means democracy. If it is held only by the group that rules, it means tyranny.

Hitler and his Nazi underlings are consistent. If you grant their premise, that they are superior beings and they alone wise enough to direct the affairs of men and nations, then everything they do is sweetly logical. The question is whether other men will accept that idea while they have strength to stand and fight.

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

Dudley Glass

Finds a Column In Mail Basket And Grabs at It.

Good day to look through accumulated mail and perhaps glean a few paragraphs. Here goes: Joseph Johnson, of 2214 Peachtree road, who says he was on The Constitution back in '23—I wonder if he's the famous Joe Johnson who was fire commissioner of New York City—voices vigorous complaint against people eating popcorn in movie theaters—and making the paper bag crack.

It seems he went to see Ted Lewis at the Paramount—he doesn't explain why—and a woman behind him, munching popcorn, stole the show from Ted. He could see him but he couldn't hear him. He climbed over six people to find another seat—and there, beside him was another woman with a bigger and louder bag of popcorn.

Mr. Johnson expresses a faint hope I can do something about it. I'm afraid not. When I was younger and full of pep and high purposes I waged war on such annoyances. The results were exactly zero.

Last Friday night at the Katharine Hepburn show a young couple arrived in the middle of the first act and took seats just behind me. It appears he had read the play—or something about it. So he started in to give a synopsis of the story thus far.

I thought, as I have often thought, that his neighbors, who had paid $3.30 per seat, would prefer hearing Miss Hepburn. But I knew from experience it would be no use to turn around and make faces at him. Nor to be coarse and tell him to shut up.

I am not addicted to criticizing the handiwork of the Creator, but I do think it would be fine if we could close our eyes as do our eyes.

Of better still if we could flop our ears forward, as a horse does, and hear only those sounds directly in front. That would be especially desirable at home when you want to read a book and somebody else wants to listen to the radio. But we can't have everything.

One-Lesson Journalism.

Miss Kate Harrington, of Stewart avenue, an eighth grade pupil in a private school, says she and her pals publish a school paper and it's getting to be a bore to read because it's practically made up of the same news every week. And she yearns for a few tips on horology.

Nothing would please me more than to air my expert knowledge for the benefit of Miss Harrington and the world-at-large.

But I would as soon undertake teaching her the art of playing the violin in one brief lesson by correspondence.

There are a few rules for newspaper writing, followed religiously by aspiring cubs. And forgotten as soon as a chap thinks he is definitely off probation and on the payroll. And as for instruction, a college journalistic course lasts from three to four years—and then the graduate lands a job on a newspaper and learns to write. Sometimes.

My suggestion, Kate, is to write and keep on writing and then write some more. And read. Read a lot. There are no secret formulas about writing—from Shakespeare to Ernest Hemingway. There are a number of good writers on Atlanta newspapers—and they spread their skill before you. There it is. Study it. Analyze it. But don't try to write like McGill or Martin or Sally Forth. Write like yourself. You'll get the swing of it some day. Or you won't. But there's nothing I can do about it. Sorry!

Not for Me!

W. L. Gilbert and J. E. Nichols, of Fannin county, two school teachers temporarily unemployed because of the flu, join in an invitation to come up to Epworth and enter into a game of poker—nickel limit. Provided I can show capital of one dollar to prove good faith.

Not I. Fannin county is a Republican stronghold and I've tried to play poker with Republicans before this.

There should be a wisecrack just here about the "New Deal," but I can't think up a good one.

Richard B. Harwell, in charge of special collections of the Emory University library, writes that he has some interesting stuff about General Leonidas Polk, the fighting bishop of the Confederacy. Because I typed a paragraph about him last week. Think I'll go take a look—when I get-around to it.

From Mrs. M. A. Gardner, of LaFrance street, comes a suggestion that the Confederate navy be included in whatever memorial eventuates at Stone Mountain. She recalls that in previous plans the navy was overlooked. She is thinking especially of Lieutenant Thomas Postell Pelot, who commanded an expedition of seven rowboats which captured the Union ship Water Witch in Ossawatomie Sound—the only recorded instance of an armed war vessel being taken by a rowboat fleet. Lieutenant Pelot was killed in the fight.

Mrs. Gardner suggests a memorial highway, to lead from Richmond to Texas, to be called the "Confederate Highway."

Maybe some efficient group can work that out some day.

Tracy Mathewson, one of my most indefatigable spies, comes through with a story about a Negro woman he knows.

"Mandy," he asked her, "how is your daughter? Is she still in Grady hospital?"

"No, suh. She got her mago yesterday."

"What's a mago?" inquired Matty. "That's a new one on me."

"It's a mago," persisted the woman. "You know! When the doctor comes around and says: 'You're all right now. You may go home today.'"

NO CHRISTIAN NATION CAN DEAL WITH DEVIL

Editor Constitution: We should help England with everything that we have that they need even if it involves us in combat. I for one believe this is no time to sound retreat. We have 16 million red-blooded registered young Yankees over here raring to go, so if we are challenged for a fight, why not give them one.

If this nation is to go forward lighting up the world for liberty, peace and for Jesus, we must reject Hitlerism altogether and substitute good-will and Christian love for all peoples everywhere.

No greater mission could a Christian nation have than to co-operate with all peoples and nations whose ideals are to keep the beacon light of love and good-will burning so brightly that all vestiges of Hitlerism, hate and darkness will be pushed off the face of the earth.

No Christian nation could even think of negotiating a peace with the devil.

ASKS FOR INVESTIGATION

Editor Constitution: I noticed in today's issue of your paper about property belonging to the state missing at the Governor's Mansion.

I had charge of painting at the mansion in the fall of 1938. Money was set aside for repairs and other improvements at the mansion. Some new furniture was bought; some re-covered. Rugs were bought and drapery and shades. Eleven thousand dollars was taken from this building fund for new silver for the mansion.

This should be investigated and taxpayers protected.

Good Morning Full Pantries For Dixie Aim Of Parley Here

BY LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Bishop Arthur J. Moore, my long-time friend, beginning with our fellowship at Camp Wheeler during the first World War, and now my neighbor in Druid Hills, was preaching the other afternoon to the Methodist preachers of Georgia during their annual week of inspiration and conference at Emory University. I wanted to hear my friend preach, and I was particularly glad that he was to preach on evangelism.

He took as his text these significant words: "Ye are . . . that ye should." First Peter 2:9. Let me quote the entire verse: "But ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a peculiar people; that ye should shew forth the praises of Him who hath called you out of darkness into His marvelous light." A great text, you will readily agree; and a great sermon, we will all agree who heard Bishop Moore last Thursday afternoon.

"Evangelism is the chief task of the church," declared Bishop Moore. "When we lose emphasis on evangelism, our income and congregations recede, our problems multiply, and we retreat on all frontiers. There is no substitute for evangelism."

"Evangelism is the heaven-born passion to share Christ with the least and the lowest and the last and the lost. Evangelistic passion in the pulpit will be met by missionary ardor in the pew. But when the pulpit loses the evangelistic passion, the pew loses interest in the spread of the gospel. I want Methodism to recapture the passion for lost souls—the sort of passion that gave Methodism power when our preachers had nothing but an open Bible and a howling wilderness. Today we have fine cathedrals and excellent technique, but these will not take the place of a passion for lost souls."

"Our great danger right now is that we will salute evangelism, and not practice it. We have discovered how wrong we were in listening to certain leaders a few years ago when they sought to play down evangelism. It is not enough to salute evangelism, we must get down to the sweaty business of working with all our might at this chief task of the church. We need to be wholly possessed by the conviction that we are called to this specific task, cost what it may. Notions about religious duty often make theological gypsies of us. Only conviction will hold us to the task. Our fathers surveyed the wondrous cross and changed the world, we survey the community and file our plans in a pigeon-hole . . ."

You can see from these quotes that the bishop was really preaching, and the fine thing about Arthur Moore's preaching is that he practiced what he preached when he was in the pastorate. During the 10 years of his ministry in San Antonio and Birmingham, he averaged receiving 22 people every Sunday upon a profession of faith. That is evangelism, and that is what we need today, not only in Methodism, but in every group of God's children. The Lord help us to see it.

URGE SELF-SUFFICIENT FARMS—Among those meeting here yesterday and today to urge more food production on southern farms are, left to right, in front, Mrs. Ola P. Malcolm, southern director of home demonstration work; M. L. Wilson, national director of the Department of Agriculture Extension Service; rear, R. S. Reed, north-central regional operation chief of the AAA, and Director Walter S. Brown, of the state agricultural extension service.

Washington Officials Seek Ways To Make Smokehouses Bulge

BY WILLARD COPE.

Uncle Sam is trying to bring back the self-sufficient southern farm of song and story with diversified products and full pantries and smokehouses with one new wrinkle, i.e., the year-round garden. He is spending money to persuade the cotton farmer to raise more of his own food, especially vegetables, fruit, milk and meat, and less cotton.

Washington officials of the Agriculture Department met here yesterday, and will meet again today, with agricultural agents and educators of 11 southern states to gain information on which to base a campaign to popularize the plan, which is termed more necessary today than ever before.

It is planned to co-ordinate the effort with distribution of $25,000,000 of cotton stamps and $3,000,000 of garden payments, already decided upon. Ultimately, it is planned that every public agency with which the cotton farmer deals shall bring all proper pressure to bear in behalf of home-produced food.

Heading the Washington delegation were M. L. Wilson, director; Reuben Brigham, assistant director, and Ralph Fulghum, information director, of the Federal Agriculture Extension Service. Georgians participating were Walter S. Brown, state extension director; Elmo Ragsdale, extension horticulturist, and Miss Lurline Collier, home demonstration agent.

This nation has now a surplus of about 11,000,000 bales of cotton," Wilson told the conference. "War has cut off much of our export outlets which normally run above 6,000,000 bales a year. Reduction of cotton acreage is vital."

Ragsdale, to whom Director Brown allotted his own time, stressed the possibilities of winter growing of vegetables, "especially greens—which are the very things needed for the winter diet." He mentioned cabbages, carrots, collards, endives, kale, leeks, onions, parsnips, spinach, oyster plants and turnips as among the garden produce susceptible of cold-weather culture in Georgia.

It was purely an "idea conference," with no action to be taken.

Bunco Leader Sees Wife He Left in 1925

Woodward Loses Tilt Over Alimony Hearing, $10,000 Legal Fee.

Floyd Woodward, leader of Atlanta's old bunco gang, and the wife he is accused of abandoning 15 years ago, saw each other in Fulton superior court yesterday for the first time since 1925. They did not speak.

The wife, Mrs. Ruth Weaver Woodward, won the first legal tilt in her petition for divorce from the man who is scheduled to be sentenced Wednesday in federal court at Gainesville on seven counts of using the mails to defraud and one of conspiracy, to which he has pleaded guilty.

Woodward, through his attorneys, sought to have the superior court set aside the service of the divorce and alimony papers on him in Fulton tower last week on the grounds he is not a resident of Fulton county. Judge Paul S. Etheridge Sr. dismissed the motion on a general demurrer filed by Attorneys Paul Carpenter, Ellis Barrett and Walton Nell, holding that service was legal and binding. Judge Etheridge set a hearing on Mrs. Woodward's plea for temporary alimony and $10,000 for attorney's fees for 9 o'clock Friday morning.

Mrs. Woodward, who married Floyd Woodward shortly before he fled from Atlanta in 1920, sat in the back of the courtroom. Woodward sat at a table near the judge's bench. They met and passed in the hallway, but neither looked at the other.

Mrs. Woodward alleged in her divorce action that she took $15,000 of her money to Woodward in Oregon in 1922 and that subsequently she bought a $12,000 ranch which he forced her to sign over to him at gun point. She declared he abandoned her by sending her back to Atlanta in 1925 and changing his name and residence.

Woodward was captured in Monrovia, Cal., last fall by postal inspectors. Judge Robert L. Russell is to pass sentence on Woodward.

Vinson Asks Ban On Photos of Ships

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Representative Carl Vinson, of Georgia, chairman of the house Naval Affairs Committee, today introduced a bill which would ban the taking of photographs of naval vessels or property except upon approval of the secretary of the navy.

The measure, sought by Navy Secretary Knox, is far-reaching in its intention. The ban, which would be imposed upon all types of reproduction, would affect all phases of naval operations, including all kinds of naval property.

Secretary Knox recently advocated that such action be taken in the interests of national defense. He outlined his reasons in a communication to the press, seeking its co-operation.

Vinson's bill would make the ban effective in the Philippine Islands as well as in the United States, and calls for a maximum penalty of $1,000 fine and one year's imprisonment for offenders.

Better than a dozen hankies for opening STUFFY NOSTRILS

What's the use of soiling so many hankies, trying to blow mucus out of stopped-up nostrils? It only piles up the laundry bill. And remember, a lot of violent blowing only makes your nose more sore, red, inflamed, and it very often injures the delicate membranes.

A more economical and gentler way to relieve congestion in your nostrils due to a cold is to insert a little Mentholum.

This delightful ointment will soon break up congested mucus, relieve the smothering feeling, and permit you to breathe normally through the nose. It also relieves sniffing, sneezing, swelling, soreness, and redness.

Mentholum helps in so many ways that you should always remember this: For Discomforts from Colds—Mentholum. Link them together in your mind.

ADVICE TO MOTORISTS.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 27.—(AP) Police Captain J. J. Clancy added a little bit today to his oft-repeated admonition to motorists to lock their cars when leaving them parked. It was—take the keys with you. The captain, head of city police, went to a banquet and on return found he'd locked his keys inside his car. He waited while a patrolman came from headquarters with an extra set.

Woman Heads Soldiers' Home

Mrs. Mary A. Gaudelock yesterday afternoon became superintendent of the Confederate Soldiers' home, succeeding Colonel Thomas Spencer, who has held the position since May 16, 1940. She was superintendent of the home from 1933 to 1937. Since that time she has been an anesthetist for the TVA hospital at Muscle Shoals and for private physicians in Atlanta. She is a registered nurse.

Yesterday General James Reed Jones, 96-year-old commander of the Georgia Confederate Veterans division and a resident of the home, appeared before Governor Talmadge and asked, on behalf of the other six inmates, that no change be made in the home's administration.

A Story of the American
White-Collar Girl

FINAL INSTALLMENT.

When Molly visits naturally I give her my bed and I shake down on the living room couch. But we have the door open between because you can't tell what you may want to say before you drop off.

"I guess I'm as much of a snob my own way as any of 'em, God help me." I call out to Molly. A while she doesn't answer, her voice is pretty drowsy.

"You're Mehitabel the cat," she says. "Remember? It's been deducted so many times has spoiled you for a wife."

It's good to have a person call your attention to something you're so used to you almost forgot thinking about it. I mean the glass snowstorm-bell. Molly's back in Chicago and I take the glass ball and give it a whirl. In spite of all the baby blizzards that's been round her, Little Girl on a Sleighride settles down clear and quiet. It's kind of intelligible to start up a storm and say to myself while it blows white I just won't think, I'll wait till it clears and then see what I find myself thinking.

What a swell time it's been for being alive, Molly, all of us kids has lived through a whole revolution already and even if it's been tough at least we knew something was happening. Some people didn't open guess, they don't tumble to it yet. I bet I was wrong when I told myself it had been ugly. Well, sure, I bet history always was temperamental when it was happening. But they lived through it, didn't they? Some of them always did. So will we, some of us, even if they tear the world to pieces. If the whole dollar system goes buttsprung we can still barter or we'll dig and spin and raise vegetables. Matter of fact the Main Line could be good at that. I bet a horse that could ride to hounds could ride to potatoes, or however potatoes are made. I wouldn't be surprised I'm getting a little sense, Molly's right, I'm phoner than they ever were, my damn Cinq-a-Sept and stuff. I bet all that smell of horse was their way of reaching for what's real. Now I'm grown up I'd like to talk to Rosey Rittenhouse.

Everybody has his own way of reaching for it, it's a big error to think you're the only one that's doing the thinking. I bet everybody has that same feeling, Now I'm alive, how grand it is and it's passing every moment.

You don't mind thinking these things to yourself. Nobody is ashamed when she's alone. How would you get in the world more of the kind of people that you can feel alone with? I wonder if I could teach Mark not to tell me more than I can listen to.

Mark says I'm so cautious. Wary, I guess was the word he used. Me! It's not the way I want to be. Which day's child is it that's Loving and Giving. What I mean, a woman loves most where she gives most. She loves you for letting her give. A person wants to give everything. It would be awful if Mark acted grateful, sort of "I certainly do appreciate this."

I wouldn't want anybody to feel there was a kind of Social Significance in my loving them, or be too earnest about it.

I can't go on giving him the runaround. It's not right. I always wanted so for things to be beautiful. One person by herself, there's so little you can do, except for the kids.

Mark said he'd call me today, he wants to hear what I think about his article on Socialized Medicine.

He knows damn well, what some of them don't yet, doctors and everything else that's important will get to be socialized sooner or later. But that's only an excuse for phoning. What he really wants to know is something else, something that can't be socialized, something that's just K. Foyle and the way she feels about it.

I had a terrible idea, it would be good if a person would grow old a bit faster? That's no way for a woman to feel. That shows what it does to you, being by yourself. Listen, snowstorm, you can't do that to me.

I might go over and visit with Delphine, she and Mr. Detaile are always home Sundays. There's that memo to the Toilet Goods Association to check over. Besides it's always fun to watch Fui try to dig his nails into the slippery floor.

Mark said he'd call, but if I got out before the bell rings? He's always hurt if I don't say darling. He says "You don't greet me darling? Is it an argument?"

They must have possibilities or they couldn't be so sensitive. Well I can say darling without committing myself to nothing. Darling is only politeness nowadays. Dearest is what I couldn't say unless by accident?

I bet that's him now. What will I tell him.

Hello darling.

THE END.

A Drafted Man Can Transfer to Regular Army

"What are the qualifications for a commission as an Army nurse?"

To be eligible for a commission, the woman applicant must be single and between 21 and 40 years of age. (Formerly the maximum was 35 years.) Those commissioned must be graduates from approved schools of nursing, registered as provided by state laws and American citizens. Duties of Army nurses are practically the same as those in civilian hospitals. The initial rate of pay is $70 a month, plus living expenses.

The War Department recently announced "an immediate and urgent need" for registered nurses for duty with the Army Nurse Corps Reserve, to keep pace with the completion of many camp and station hospitals scheduled during January and February. By June 30 it is planned to have 4,019 members of the Army Nurse Corps Reserve on extended active duty. Complete information on the Army Nurse Corps may be obtained by writing to the commanding general of any one of the nine corps areas of the Army.

selective service man transfer to the regular Army?"

Any enlisted man, inducted or enlisted for one year in the Army, may upon his application in writing after one month's service in a unit other than as a trainee in a replacement center, be discharged for re-enlistment in the regular Army for a period of three years.

VIVIAN FORREST fell head over heels for every pretty girl he met... and when Vivian fell, the resounding crash re-echoed through his own household. Jean Forrest overlooked her husband's philandering until he insisted that Esmeralda Fane make the Forrest home a "menage a trois," then she rebelled, and Vivian's murder followed, leaving Fleming Stone, the famous detective, with a very unusual mystery case.

Memorial to Mrs. Hal Hentz Planned by Habersham Club

• • • IN LOVING TRIBUTE to the late Mrs. Hal Hentz, one of the most popular and beloved vice presidents ever to hold office in the Habersham Garden Club, members of the organization held a memorial service yesterday at the West Peachtree street home of Mrs. Anita Armstrong.

The feature of the meeting was the decision by club members to build a bird haven in the Habersham garden on Peachtree Battle avenue in affectionate memory of the prominent Atlantian who won the admiration and esteem of all who knew her during her full and energetic life.

A member of the Habersham Garden Club since 1935, Mrs. Hentz was untiring in her activities on behalf of the organization. As chairman of the program committee for the current year, she planned an interesting study of plant nomenclature, its origin and meaning, and of the fathers of botany.

Mrs. W. E. DuPre read resolutions, which were passed and sent to Mrs. Hentz's family. Mrs. Donald Hastings gave an instructive talk on "The Travels of Mr. Bartram," which deals with the story of the famous "Lost Gordonia." A gordonia plant, given the club by Mr. and Mrs. Hastings, will be planted in the Peachtree Battle avenue garden. Mrs. B. F. Coggins, president, presided at the meeting, during which members of the club expressed their intentions of carrying on the work planned by their beloved vice president, whose passing has touched the heart of all Atlanta.

• • • SHE IS an attractive northsider and he is the third to bear his prominent name. Their engagement was revealed quite recently when she displayed her beautiful engagement ring to close friends, the formal announcement to be made at a future date.

She has brown naturally wavy hair and dreamy, blue, long-lashed eyes. She graduated from North Fulton High school, and later attended a well-known art school, being very talented in painting and sketching.

Her fiancé graduated last June from Tech, where he was a popular member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity. He previously attended Boys' High school, and was a member of the A. S. P. fraternity. He expects to be drafted into military service at any moment.

Can you name them?

• • • WOODLAND SCENES, dotted with capricious deer, inquisitive squirrels, and birds on the wing, decorate the outside cover of the attractive invitations issued by Mrs. Frank Allcorn Jr. and Mrs. Charles S. Hammond to their breakfast on February 8. The party will honor a bevy of popular debutantes, including Mary Lib Beers, Elsa McCall, Martha Merritt and Gladys Randall, and will be held at Mrs. Allcorn's cabin on East Conway road, near North Fulton Park.

The verse, written in wood-brown ink on the interior of the novel invitation, reads:

"The season's most gone,
With its bustle and whirl
You're running 'round
Like a little caged squirrel."

"So come to the wildwood,
Where life is so free
To play some badminton
Or else climb a tree."

"Just throw on your play togs,
All 'comfy' and then,
We'll serve country breakfast
About half past ten."

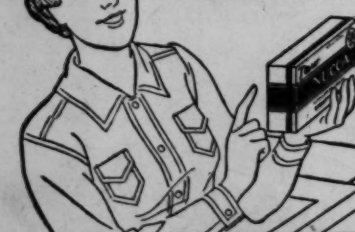

• • • GLANCING through the social columns of the Sunday issue of the Washington Post, Sally was interested to note the charming photograph of Mrs. Charles F. Palmer. The lovely Atlantian, who is now living in the national capital, was pictured leaving a party with Mrs. George Allen.

The two matrons, both wearing handsome fur coats, attended the benefit breakfast given by Mrs. Irene Caldwell, the affair being one of the many given to help raise funds for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Pictured on the same page with the pair were Mrs. Caldwell and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the World War President. Also on the page were pictures of Mrs. Thurman Arnold, wife of the assistant attorney general, pouring a cup of breakfast coffee for Mrs. William H. Harrison, and Mrs. John Biggers and Lady Lewis, wife of Sir Wilmott Lewis.

MY DAY: Indian Exhibit Shows Skill

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Sunday.—Yesterday morning, in New York City, I certainly did as many things as one could well put into the hours of one morning.

Miss Esther Lape went with me to my first appointment at 10 o'clock at the Museum of Modern Art. After we began on the top floor and progressed downwards through the Indian exhibit. I think it is one of the most exciting and thrilling exhibitions I have been to in a long while. What beautiful work the Indians did, even in the days when stone tools were all they had! I am thrilled by the fact that their skill has not died out and that many of the things which they make today are easily adapted to our modern life.

Some woven Indian material makes a delightful cover for a modern chair, and an Indian drum makes a very convenient little table for use beside that chair. Much of the silver work is really beautiful and one of the best silversmiths was there himself to explain his art, which he is now teaching in one of the Indian schools. An Indian painter and some Indian weavers are also on hand ready to answer your question.

Never before have I had the sense of centuries of development which lie back of the arts of our Indian people. This Indian exhibition should certainly stimulate production and bring us, as consumers, a realization of what we can do to keep the Indian arts and skills alive for future generations.

After leaving this exhibition, I met Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Andrews, who are concerned about the disposition of their wonderful Shaker collection. They have examples of all types of Shaker work and they have collected information on Shaker life and customs for many years. This collection should undoubtedly be preserved for the future because the Shaker colonies are rapidly dying out.

Take Lessons In Public Speaking

Appearing like a prisoner up for sentence, instead of the charming woman she really is. What a poor impression she makes speaking before her P-T-A. Eyes glued to the floor, she clutches desperately at her purse, mumbles so her audience can scarcely hear her.

But with a few home lessons in public speaking, how poised, at ease she could be! Knowing parliamentary rules, do's and don'ts for speakers, even the most timid quickly overcome their stage fright.

Keep your weight firmly planted on both feet. Leave your gloves or purse on your chair so you can stand with hands at sides or loosely folded. Then, if you look directly at your listeners and give them an occasional smile, you can't miss!

Your voice, too, sounds more authoritative when you learn to "pace" your tones against your belt. Practice breathing in slowly and steadily, pushing out your tummy and lower ribs and lifting your chest. So you'll sound clear as a bell open your lips and teeth when you talk.

Co-Starring Merle Oberon, Melvyn Douglas Involved Studio Complications

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 27.—"Merle Oberon co-stars with Melvyn Douglas in 'That Uncertain Feeling.' A simple announcement. But the story of how and why they are co-starred is just about as complicated as they come. I'll take a deep breath and start at the beginning.

Alexander Korda, husband of Merle, was willing to loan a certain Vivien Leigh to Metro (for 'Waterloo Bridge') on condition that that studio lend him Melvyn Douglas for one picture. "Okay," said the biggies at Metro, "You can have Douglas providing you use him so many weeks at such and such a time." Came the time, and Korda was not ready to use Douglas. So he went to his friend Ernst Lubitsch and said, "I'll give you Melvyn Douglas for 'That Uncertain Feeling' providing you take Merle Oberon as well and pay her the usual salary (close on $100,000)."

Lubitsch was delighted to oblige. In one signature he had a leading man and a leading lady—the lack of which had been holding up his film. But the shenanigans weren't over yet. Before Korda could lend Douglas, he had to get permission from Columbia, who shared his contract with Metro. Columbia said it was all right with them—it they could borrow Martha Scott, who is under contract to Sol Lesser, for whom Lubitsch was making his film. (Is your head beginning to spin yet?) Anyway, Martha is now at Columbia making 'They Dare Not Love.' And 'That Uncertain Feeling' will be released February 15.

And Producer Sol Lesser is once more desperate for a leading man for his next film, 'Strange Victory' (tentative title 'Almost a Wife'). "I'd like to borrow Melvyn Douglas again," he tells me, and is hoping, without much optimism, that another chain of events will throw him his way. "Then there's Cary Grant," says Lesser. "I'd like him. But his contract is divided between R-K-O, and Columbia; and even if they'd lend him, Cary cannot make any more pictures this year or he'll lose money."

Cary gets $150,000 per picture, is trying to limit them to two a year. So far he has three commitments for 1941 and wants to get out of one.

"I think I could get Doug Fairbanks, Junior," says Mr. Lesser, "but he isn't right for the part. What do you think of Ronald Colman or Herbert Marshall?" he asks me desperately.

"How about Ray Milland?" I ask. "Can't get him at any price," says Lesser gloomily. I suggest James Craig, who did such a good job with 'Ginger Rogers in 'Kitty Foyle.'" "He isn't well known enough," sighs Lesser. "I must have a big masculine name to go with Martha Scott." I thought Martha was big enough now to carry a lesser-known leading man. "B" it seems she isn't. Hey, I've just thought of someone—Fredric March.

Before going over for a chat with Orson Welles, I want to ask a question of Hollywood producers: How are you going to replenish your leading man reservoir if you don't give a chance to the newcomers?

Okay, now for Orson. I have a question for him, too. "If I ask him, 'If you had to do 'Citizen Kane' all over again, would you do it?'" He hesitates, then replies, "I might not, but only because I wouldn't want to 'embarrass Easily made ice cream is year-round dessert.

Ice Cream Is Excellent Year-Round Dessert

By Sally Saver.

By far the most popular of all desserts is ice cream. From the children to the grown-ups and grandparents, they all go for it in a big way. And a splendid choice it is, too, for ice cream is nutritious as well as tasty, and is a healthful milk dessert, a wonderfully good food.

Too often we think of ice cream as a summer dessert, whereas it is just as good in cooler months, and simple to prepare when you have an easy recipe. It's a good idea to keep some in the refrigerator to reward the youngsters for special efforts, with their favorite dessert, to serve when an unexpected occasion arises. A little ice cream goes a long way if you use it for a topping on puddings and cake. With a little imagination many a la mode treats can be evolved to add delight to your table. Serve an ice cream garnish on pie and layer cake, the usual a la mode desserts. Serve it, too, on baked apples, gingerbread, rice pudding and canned fruit. Ice cream sandwiches are delicious, made by putting a spoonful of ice cream between two pieces of plain cake and topping the sandwich with another spoonful of ice cream and serving the whole with chocolate sauce.

Following is an easy and practically failure-proof recipe for making a trayful of ice cream and its accompanying sauce.

- Vanilla Ice Cream.
2-3 cup sweetened condensed milk
1-2 cup water
1-2 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup whipping cream
Mix sweetened condensed milk, water and vanilla. Chill. Whip cream to custard-like consistency. Fold into chilled mixture. Place in refrigerator and let half freeze. Remove and beat until smooth but not melted. Replace and leave until frozen. Serves 8.
- Five-Minute Chocolate Sauce.
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1-1-3 cups sweetened condensed milk
1-8 teaspoon salt
1-2 to 1 cup hot water
Melt chocolate in top of double boiler. Add sweetened condensed milk and stir over boiling water five minutes until mixture thickens. Add salt and hot water, amount depending on the consistency desired. Makes 2 or 2-1-2 cups sauce.

THESE WOMEN -- By d'Alessio

"What kind of wallpaper would go well with a third husband?"

Check On Walking, Standing Posture

By Ida Jean Kain.

If you were to go to one of the "make yourself over" salons along Fifth Avenue, you would be surprised how little time is spent in teaching you to use cosmetics—and how much in coaching you to sit, stand and walk! Unless you carry yourself well, everything else is spoiled! You can apply some of these same tests and do your own coaching at home.

Let's check up on the way you stand—walk up to a wall until the toes of both feet are right against it, and stand naturally. How much of you is in contact with the wall? Only the toes and chest should touch! If your chest touches, it's evidence that you are poking your head forward instead of keeping a nice, straight line at the back of the neck. And along with this fault there is a tendency to let the shoulders go forward.

If your stomach touches the wall, that is proof of over-taxed muscles—and probably of a swayback as well. To line up perfectly, turn around and stand with your back to the wall and press the head, shoulders, hips, calves and heels against the wall. That posture is too rigid to be natural but it lets you get the feeling of the correct line-up.

From the second wall test, you can go into a very good exercise for strengthening the important muscles. Keep the back flat against the wall, but have the heels about four inches out, feet parallel and knees slightly bent. Now, pull up and in with the lower abdominal wall and try to push the small of the back flat against the wall. Hold it! Turn the knees outward and slide down the wall as far as you can. When you have done that, try sliding up again. It's hard to do, but you get good exercise from merely trying.

Or, you can go about your back straightening this way: Lie on the back, knees bent, feet on the floor near the buttocks, and heels together. Pull up and in with the lower abdominal muscles and "dig" into the floor with the small of the back. Turn the knees outward, keep heels together, and try to slide feet down on the floor without letting the small of the back come off the floor.

You can do a number of exercises in these two positions—back pressed flat against the wall or floor—which will improve your stance, and at the same time give you a lovelier figure. Try the sideways bend, with arms stretched high overhead, hands clasped, to trim inches off the waist. Or, begin with arms flexed, hands in front of chest, then straighten the arms and move them from the shoulders until they are straight up over head on wall or floor. That stretches your midriff and tones arm and shoulder muscles. The more freely you can move while keeping your back exaggeratedly straight, the closer you will come to being able to hold a naturally lovely posture.

Ida Jean Kain says "Posture Makes the Figure"—send large stamped envelope for her leaflet of that name. Address your request to Miss Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Miss Elsa McCall Crowned Queen of Cotton Carnival

Miss Elsa McCall was crowned "Queen of Cotton" at the brilliant cotton carnival held last evening by members of the Young Matrons' Circle of Tallulah Falls School on the Rainbow Roof of the Ansley hotel. The identity of the queen was kept a secret until Miss McCall, president of the 1940-41 Debutante Club, entered the ballroom escorted by Mayor Roy LeCraw. A regal figure clad in a period gown of white lace embroidered in glistening metal threads, she was crowned with a diadem formed of rhinestones and cotton.

Preceding the spectacular entrance of the queen was a parade of her attendants wearing the latest in modish pastel evening frocks and including Mesdames Gus Ashcraft, Strother Fleming Jr., Nat Hardin Jr., Hugh Dorsey Jr., McKee, Nunnally, Robert Chambers, Joe Boland, Beverly DuBose Jr., English Robinson, E. D. Smith Jr., Henry Heinz Jr., Gordon Jones, Robert Ison Jr., J. J. Singleton, Stewart Witham Jr. and Octavia Riley Boland.

The Rainbow Roof was transformed for the carnival into a realistic southern plantation scene. Back of the orchestra platform was a scenic backdrop painted to represent a cotton field, while members of the orchestra performed in a setting of real cotton stalks laden with cotton ready to pick. The cotton motif was repeated in the ballroom ceiling, which was studded with cotton stalks full of open cotton bolls. Suspended at intervals among the cotton stalks were large aeroplane models. The elaborate decorations were in charge of Mrs. E. A. Cronheim and Mrs. Willard McBurney.

An interesting feature of the ball was the announcement of the prize winners, announcements being made every hour on the stroke of the clock. The highlight of the evening was the fashion revue held at 10 o'clock, which was broadcast over radio station WGST. Beautiful Atlanta matrons, serving as mannikins, displayed the smartest of cotton costumes, including play ensembles, daytime frocks, and evening gowns. A group of students from Tech and Emory modeled the latest in male fashions.

Several hundred members of Atlanta society attended the cotton carnival, the proceeds of which will be devoted to a Fessie Fenton Ottley fund of the Tallulah Falls School for mountain children.

Miss Chapman To Be Honored

Parties for Miss Julia Chapman, attractive bride-elect, continue to enliven the social calendar.

Today Miss Margaret Winship, who is numbered among the season's feted debutantes, will compliment Miss Chapman at a luncheon at her home on Peachtree way. She will be assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Joseph Winship.

On Friday morning at 11 o'clock Mrs. C. Robert Mitchell will give a breakfast in honor of the popular bride-elect, this affair to be held in the Green Room of the Capital City Club.

Miss Chapman was central figure yesterday at the luncheon given by Mrs. Leaver Richardson and her daughter, Miss Virginia Richardson, at their home on Montclair drive.

The lace-covered table in the dining room was centered with a graceful arrangement of calla lilies and swainsons. Place cards, handpainted in a calla lily design by Miss Richardson, marked the guests' places.

Invited for the occasion were Misses Selma Wight, Elizabeth Groves, Jane Osburn, Bolling Spalding, Dorothy Chapman, Mesdames Gordon Jones, Beverly duBose Jr., Robert Schwab, Gordon Kiser Jr., Robert Chambers and William Mason.

Mrs. Aline Thompson Weds Graham Wright Sr., of Rome

Of wide interest in the state is the announcement of the marriage of Mrs. Aline Thompson, of this city, to Graham Wright Sr., of Rome, the ceremony having been a quiet event taking place on Saturday at the Peachtree Christian church here. The pastor, Dr. Robert Burns, officiated.

After the ceremony the bridal couple left for a wedding trip by motor to Tennessee and North Carolina, and after February 1 they will reside at the home of Mr. Wright, 307 Fourth Avenue, in Rome, Ga.

Mr. Wright is one of the leading attorneys of the state and is a former president of the Georgia Bar Association. His father, the late Seaborn Wright, was a member of the Georgia legislature for many years and was a noted pro-

Schedule Calls for Three Road Trips Around the Circuit.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 27.—(P)—The Southern Association of Baseball Clubs today adopted its 1941 schedule amid predictions that the season would be one of the most successful in the league's history.

President Trammell Scott sounded the optimistic note with the assertion that "unless something unforeseen occurs in the war situation, baseball in general and the Southern Association in particular should have one of its most successful years."

Club owners attending the meeting concurred in Scott's forecast, pointing to activity in defense industries and the influx of army and national guard troops in the south as indicative of increased attendance.

The schedule adopted called for a 154-game season opening April 10 and closing September 7.

Opening games April 10 will be Knoxville at Atlanta, Memphis at Birmingham, Nashville at Chattanooga and Little Rock at New Orleans. The second round of openers April 15 called for Chattanooga at Knoxville, Atlanta at Nashville, New Orleans at Memphis and Birmingham at Little Rock.

The annual All-Star game will be held July 7 or 8 in the city leading the league as of games played July 1. Problems attendant of national conscription were discussed informally, Scott said, but no formal action taken.

Holiday doubleheaders were billed for July 4 and Labor Day, September 1.

The July 4 schedule: New Orleans at Atlanta, Birmingham at Chattanooga, Memphis at Knoxville and Little Rock at Nashville. Labor Day: Atlanta at New Orleans, Knoxville at Memphis, Nashville at Little Rock and Chattanooga at Birmingham.

As an economy measure, Scott said the club owners had arranged the schedule for three road trips around the circuit. Last year each club visited every city in the loop four times and Scott estimated elimination of one trip would save each team approximately $1,500.

Good Sports Defense Need, Wade Believes

GREENSBORO, N. C., Jan. 27.—(P)—Wallace Wade, Duke football coach, outlined tonight to an audience who had gathered to pay tribute to Paul Severin, winner of the Lewis E. Teague-A. A. U. trophy, the relation of organized athletics to national defense.

"Three outstanding things are learned from organized athletics," Wade said. "First, there is loyalty, followed by an understanding of the spirit of fair play, and broad-mindedness."

"Athletics does many things in addition to making one well trained physically. In athletics a player learns to forget himself. He learns to be loyal and unselfish; he learns that when one takes unfair advantage of an opponent he is hurting himself and removing all chance of personal satisfaction of having done something worth-while, and by developing broad-mindedness one learns to respect an opponent, to know that the other fellow is capable of doing a good job."

"The way to train our people for the maximum in national defense is to teach them—through organized athletics—to be good sports."

Sports figures from throughout the Carolinas attended the banquet. Wiley Scholar, a past president of the Touchdown Club, which sponsored the A. A. U. dinner, and president of the Southern Football Officials' Association, made the presentation of the rotating trophy and a permanent plaque to Severin, an All-American end on the University of North Carolina football team last fall for the second year in a row.

Hicks' Record 74 Wins Medal in Miami Meet

Louise Suggs Fires 83 and Dorothy Kirby Has 82; Mrs. Bright Makes Championship Flight.

By DOROTHY KIRBY.
MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 27.—The big day is over and all the Atlanta entries qualified in this annual Miami-Biltmore tournament except "Mamma" Keeler who didn't quite make it. The main feature of the day was the brilliant play of Elizabeth Hicks. She was the medalist with a lot to spare. She turned in a record 74. The old mark, which I once happened to tie, was 79.

Medal play is Elizabeth's favorite and she always plays it well. Last week you remember she came in first at Punta Gorda with 73. Her game today was very steady. She went out in 36 and back in 38. A big 7 was included in the 38. It came on the 11th hole.

Next to Elizabeth was Marion Miley and Grace Amory with 79's. Jane Cothran and I finished with 82's. A funny thing about this was that we wound up with the same number of strokes. Our putts for the 18 were even, as we had each, and if we had been playing match golf the score would have been even also.

Another interesting fact about my round was that I only hit two greens in regulation figures, and one of these I three-putted from the excitement of being there. In other words, I was having trouble with my second shots. In fact, when I look back over the situation it's a wonder I got in with an 82.

However, all of this is long gone and tomorrow is another day. Louise Suggs took an 83, and this put her in the bottom bracket along with Marion Miley and Grace Amory. I am left with Cothran, Bauer and Hicks in the top bracket. All of us have a fairly easy match for tomorrow. If I should escape tomorrow's round I meet Jean Bauer, which is bad.

We have two matches on Wednesday, playing the finals on Friday. The other Atlanta entry, Mrs. Bright, had a 95, which put her in the championship flight. I think my caddy had the right idea when he told somebody in the gallery this morning that all that was the matter with me was that I was afraid to hit the ball.

I believe he might have something there. I tried a new experiment today and played with a glove on my left hand. This was originally to protect my hand from being so blistered, but I think it also helps me hit the ball with a firmer left hand.

Dick Chapman, the national champion, is around and practicing a bit. He seems to be hitting the ball on the nose. Frank Walsh, the big pro from New Jersey, is also resting up here and getting his game in shape. He says he plans to play in several tournaments soon, so he is taking it easy while he can.

My game will have to get tuned up tomorrow or I might wind up out of the running. However, I think it will shape up, and soon, I hope.

Vols, Crackers Are Favorites
NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 27.—(P)—Nashville and Atlanta were picked today by the club owners as the winter book favorites for the 1941 Southern association baseball pennant.

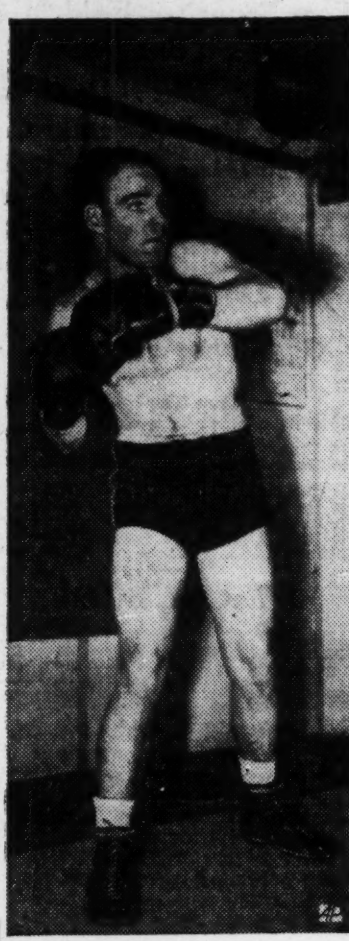

The 1940 pennant-winning Vols were chosen by two executives to repeat, while Atlanta, Memphis and Chattanooga received one vote each. However, Atlanta got three other votes to finish in the first division.

Earl Mann, president of the Crackers, declined to pick the winner, but selected Atlanta, Birmingham, Nashville and Knoxville as likely first division finishers. "Just how they'll finish I can't say," he added.

Without batting an eye, Larry Gilbert, Nashville skipper, picked his club to repeat. "I'll take Nashville, Atlanta and Birmingham in that order," he asserted.

Joe Engel picked Chattanooga first when asked about the race. He said, "Here's how they'll finish exactly: Chattanooga, Knoxville and Little Rock."

Asked the basis for his picks, Engel quipped: "I asked my stockholders and they told me."

NEXT FOR LOUIS—Clarence (Red) Burman, body-punching Baltimore heavyweight, gets a crack at Joe Louis' title Friday night in Madison Square Garden. Jack Dempsey thinks Burman will win if he gets by the first three rounds of the scheduled 15-rounder.

Farnell Blair Has Big Stable Of Fine Horses

Some of the best horses ever trained in Atlanta have recently been bought by Farnell Blair, who has purchased part of the estate of Walter Candler including some of the Candler horses.

Maddux Whitley has been obtained as manager for the new stable, which is now probably the biggest in the south. Outstanding horses have been purchased in Louisville and the midwest.

Nine of the best campaigners were shipped out last night in a palace car to Houston, Texas, for the show there February 5-12. They will return here, and then be sent to the Tampa and Orlando, Fla., shows. These and others will be entered in the Atlanta horse show in May.

Horses sent to Houston included: Hurricane, a five-gaited bay yearling (a winner in Louisville), bought from the Red Top Farm at Libertyville, Ill.

World's Fairest, three-gaited saddle mare.

Mountain Raven, harness mare, which won world's championship at Chicago.

Carita, three-gaited walktrot mare.

Southern Girl, three-gaited, under two, grey mare.

Brilliant Miss, bay junior.

The American, three-year-old chestnut.

Onward Bound, five-gaited stake horse.

Streamline, speedy roadster horse.

With the Blair stables as an impetus, Atlanta should see a revival in horse show interest.

$17,000 Returned To Slapsie Maxie

MIAMI, Jan. 27.—(UP)—Gambling equipment valued at $15,000 which was seized in a raid on Slapsie Maxie's Frolies here two weeks ago late today was ordered destroyed by City Judge Jack Kirchick.

In the same order Judge Kirchick directed the city to return $17,000 of $26,200 taken when the night club was raided. The $17,000 was not actually in play on the gambling tables when the raid was made, the order explained.

The night club featured Maxie Rosenbloom, former boxing champion, who was not involved in the raid.

Sisler Re-named Semi-Pro Leader

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—(P)—George H. Sisler, of St. Louis, one of baseball's most brilliant first basemen of all time, was re-appointed commissioner of semi-pro baseball today for a five-year term.

Directors ruled that henceforth no player could be selected for the national semi-pro hall of fame until he had completed one year in the National or American League. Three players already are in the hall of fame—Johnny Rucker, New York Giants; Fred Hutchinson, Detroit Tigers; and Jim Mallory, Washington Senators.

11 Star Dogs Seek National Derby Crown

Contact Sets Pace in Opening Series with Three Finds.

MACON, Miss., Jan. 27.—The National Club's Derby championship opened here today with 11 noted bird dogs, all pointers, vying for the title. Eight faced the judges in hour-and-a-half heats under excellent weather conditions. Birds were scarce on the F. Nunn plantations, but Contact, pointer owned by G. Dawson Coleman, of Philadelphia, and handled by Mack McGrady, made three finds and had a race which gained him many new admirers.

The dog recently won the title of All-American Derby champion and is a favorite with many in this important dog event.

Subsidy, pointer female owned by John McKee, of Friarspoint, Miss., and handled by Earl Bufkin, also found three bevises and twice backed her brace-mate, Rex Village Jake, pointer belonging to F. W. Shappert, of Belvidere, Ill. Jake also was credited with three finds.

Some prunning favorites failed to click. Dreamy, A. G. C. Sage's pointer, winner of the American Field Quail Futurity, failed to measure up. Three dogs will be brought out tomorrow to try to win favor in the eyes of the judges, Emory R. Beetham, of Cleveland, Ohio, and T. Dean Coridan, of Fortville, Ind.

The national Free-for-All Quail championship, which follows the Derby event, has a record-equaling field of 27 contenders.

LATEST RULES FOR BRITISH GOLFERS.
Here are the latest rules for British golfers, reprinted in The Greenskeeper's Reporter:

1. The position of known delayed action bombs will be marked by red flags placed at a reasonably possible to where it lay, or if lost or destroyed, another ball may be dropped not nearer the hole without penalty.

2. Competitors, during gunfire or while bombs are falling, may take cover without penalty.

3. All of which emphasizes the fact that the British are a hardy race. Another rule along those lines might read: Use brassie shots on parachute troops, and follow up with sand wedges. The wedges should be swung like axes or a man taking his seventh whack in a sand trap.

And getting away from the serious side a bit, have you ever considered two of America's lines of defense? Dub golfers and the cows and hogs of Florida and Georgia.

The swings of desperate dufers might not stop tanks, but we'll bet on the cows and hogs. In case of invasion, the Florida coast could be left defenseless.

NO KIBITZING.
Hecklers and others who aren't playing golf cannot follow matches on Atlanta's municipal courses unless they pay greens fees. That's the ruling, with the mayor's name attached.

Los Angeles also has put in a similar ordinance to stymie kibitzers—wives, sweethearts and friends.

Such laws are aimed at bettors who like to see action for their cash.

This dub is going to a municipal course and insist on enforcement of the rule next time that opponent brings his wife along to heckle me.

NO, THANKS, LOUISE.
Louise Suggs certainly likes that Punta Gorda course. Got a card from her the other day issuing a challenge.

"I certainly would enjoy having you for an opponent down here," she wrote. "It's too good to be true."

Thanks just the same, Louise, but I'll have to turn that over to the committee on challenges—those fellows who think defeating a feminine golfer is just a breeze. After that last lacing, I'd rather run you a foot race—or something where you don't have to hit a golf ball.

Anyway, I've had humiliation enough lately. Teddy Hayes beat me with one hand tied behind him. Shot a 73, you know.

HAT-JUMP CLUB.
Wirt Gammon, Chattanooga Times sports editor, thinks our jump-on-the-hat-instead-of-throw your-club one is a swell idea, and has recommended it to Tennesseans.

He picked a good time. What with the Vols scheduling Boston College, Tennesseans are willing to get into the spirit of the new deal and try anything.

Return of Racing Due at Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 27.—(P) Sylvester W. Labrot, spokesman of a syndicate negotiating to purchase the idle Fairgrounds race track to resume racing here, announced today that "barring unforeseen technicalities the deal is definitely going through."

Labrot said it would be decided Wednesday night, at a meeting of prospective subscribers, whether an option to purchase the track for $525,000 would be taken up. The option expires next Monday.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Continuing the decline which has carried wheat values to the lowest level since before Christmas, future prices here sagged as much as 1/2 cent today but then steadied. July and September contracts, which can be satisfied by delivery of 1941 grown grain, were weakest early in the session, due chiefly to selling inspired by snow over much of the belt. Later, the market rallied while May wheat bore the brunt of selling, largely representing the undoing of spreads between the various deliveries.

Wheat closed 1/4 cent lower than Saturday. Corn unchanged to 1/2 cent. Oats 1/2 cent down, and lard 7/8 lower.

Mr. McCollum

"When a feller needs a friend—"

WHEN you're already got more obligations than you can manage, and some emergency demands ready cash—

that's when you "need a friend" with money. And Money is what I like to talk about because that's what I've got lots of. So, if you need $50 to $1,000, see me—let's talk it over in a friendly sort of way.
